Groton during the Revolution

---

IN this collection of papers I purpose to print the military rolls of Groton companies that served at different times during the Revolution, together with such other facts and documents as relate to the subject. These various rolls, etc., for the most part are preserved among the Revolutionary papers of the Massachusetts Archives at the State House. In the volumes of "Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War," now in course of publication by the Commonwealth, the names of the men and officers from the whole State are given, but they are arranged alphabetically and not by towns. A reference to that work will furnish much additional information, as after the various names there is found a short account of each one's service. Some of the papers and documents, here printed, are taken from newspapers and other publications, not easily accessible to the general reader, but in every case it is stated where the original may be seen. Many of them have appeared in the "Groton Historical Series."

Nineteenth of April

To the people of Massachusetts the Nineteenth of April is fraught with great events and full of stirring associations. On that day in 1689, Sir Edmund Andros, Governor of New England, representing here the power of Great Britain, was consigned by an enraged people as a prisoner to the Castle in Boston Harbor. On that day in 1775, British troops fired on the yeomanry of Massachusetts, and the first blood in the War for Independence was then shed. On that day in 1861, a Middlesex County regiment, rushing to the defence of the National Capital, was attacked by an armed mob in the streets of Baltimore, where four soldiers were killed, and more than thirty wounded. These several dates in different centuries are separated by an interval of just eighty-six years, which seems to represent the historic cycle of Middlesex County and of Massachusetts.

Minute-men

In the pursuit of game and other wild animals the early settlers of Massachusetts became familiar with the use of powder, ball, and musket, and even the boys were skilled marksmen. As early as the spring of 1645 the General Court ordered that all youths between the ages of ten and sixteen years should be instructed by competent soldiers in the exercise of arms, such as small guns, half pikes, and bows and arrows, provided their parents were willing. The frequent attacks of the Indians kept the men schooled in the arts of war, and the trials of one campaign fitted them for the duties of the next. Many of the officers who served during the Revolution received the rudiments of their military education in the French and Indian War; and the experience there gained stood them in good stead. The rank and file were made up of brave men, though undisciplined, who from their sires had inherited a love of liberty. For a period of years the leaders had been preparing, consciously or unconsciously, for a struggle which was soon to begin. Great events were hastening public opinion toward the final step.

The leaders of the American Revolution showed much wisdom in the strict attention paid to the preparatory details of their work; and every move on the board was made with reference to something that was to follow. The final success of the military struggle was due as much to their foresight and sagacity in this respect as to the deep feeling of the people. The alarm at Lexington on the memorable Nineteenth of April aroused almost simultaneously the whole country for miles around, so carefully had the region in the neighborhood been allotted to special messengers, whose duty was arranged beforehand for such a purpose. On the side of the patriots the skirmishes of that day were fought by companies made up largely of minute-men, organized on recommendation of the First Provincial Congress of Massachusetts, in a Resolve passed at Cambridge on October 26, 1774. At that time it was recommended to the field officers of the various militia regiments that they should enlist at least one-quarter of their respective commands, and form them into companies to be held in readiness, at the shortest notice from the Committee of Safety, to march to the place of rendezvous. Such soldiers soon became known as "Minute-men"; and at the first signal of hostilities they were on hand, armed and equipped, ready for any emergency that they might be called upon to meet. At this critical period in many ways they proved to be of great help to the popular cause. The existence of such a body of drilled men seems to have been prompted by the practice of nearly twenty years before, during the French and Indian War, when there were bands of men, known as "Alarm lists," who were to be ready for military service at a minute's warning. And in their turn these Alarm lists followed the precedent set by the Suffolk and Middlesex regiments, which at the beginning of Philip's War were ordered by the General Court to "be ready to march on a moment's warning." Even before this time, as early as August 12, 1645, in anticipation of trouble with the Indians it was ordered that thirty men out of every hundred in the militia should be ready "at halfe an howers warning" for any service that they might be called upon to perform by their commanding officers.

4 Groton during the Revolution

These various instances all contain the germ of the system. Thus it is seen that, for a period of a hundred and thirty years before the Revolution, the minute-man was a prime factor in both the Colonial and Provincial militia.

The Advance of the British Troops

The news of the advance of the British troops on Lexington and Concord reached the village of Groton early in the morning of the Nineteenth, when word was sent at once to all parts of the town calling on the minute-men to rally on the Common in front of the Meeting-house. The alarm, probably, was a continuation of the one sent from Charlestown just before midnight, and reached Groton soon after sunrise. There is some reason to think that this intelligence was expected at that particular time, and that messengers were ready to carry it to the out-lying homes of the farmers. On April 17 it was voted by the Committees of Safety and of Supplies that the four six-pounders should be transported from Concord to Groton, and put under the care of Colonel Oliver Prescott; and on the next day it was also voted that certain ammunition, as well as a large number of tents, and two medicine chests, should be sent there for safe-keeping. As open hostilities began so soon afterward, there was probably no time to make the removal. The community was much agitated, and men were thoroughly aroused. The air was full of rumors, and nobody knew their source. They seemed to come by "grape-vine telegraph,"—as the expression was in the Union army during the War of the Rebellion.

Upon the recommendation of the Provincial Congress, two companies of minute-men had been enlisted in Groton. According to a printed sermon preached before them, on February 21, 1775, by the Reverend Samuel Webster, of Temple, New Hampshire, their officers at that time had been already chosen, and while there had been "heats"—as the minister expressed it—in other towns over the choice of officers, there had been none at Groton. Unfortunately, at a later period "heats," or contentions, did break out in one of these companies, as appears from an entry in Amos Farnsworth's diary, on April 26, 1775.

These two companies of minute-men had been expecting the call, and, true to their designation, were ready to march at short notice. On that eventful Nineteenth both companies — one of them under the command of Captain Henry Farwell, and the other under that of Captain Asa Lawrence — rallied on the Common. It is probable that by the middle of the forenoon they started for the scene of action. One of these companies bivouacked that night in Lexington, and it is very likely that the other did also. The intense excitement of a forced march, due not only to what they saw on the way, but to what they heard, speeded their steps, and there was no lagging on the road. They left their homes as British subjects, but came back as independent citizens, who never again knew the authority of a king.

According to tradition there were a few adventurous men who, after hearing the news of an English incursion, but before their knowledge of actual bloodshed, pushed on to Concord, independently of the military companies, and took part in the engagement at the North Bridge, and perhaps with the minute-men followed up the British grenadiers on their retreat. In confirmation of this tradition, see the "New Chapter in the History of the Concord Fight," which is printed later in this volume, and gives much circumstantial evidence on the subject.

The events of the Nineteenth brought political matters to a head. The hasty assemblage of military companies, which then rushed to the neighborhood of Boston, by no means formed an effective army. While the men and officers had the true martial spirit, they were undisciplined as well as inexperienced.

The Reverend George E. Ellis, D.D., in his "History of the Battle of Bunker's Hill," has well described the men who volunteered during this emergency.

6 Groton during the Revolution

The yeomen of town and village had not come together at the summons of a commander-in-chief through adjutant, herald or advertisement. They came unbidden, at an alarm from the bell on their meeting-house, or from a post-rider, or from the telegrams transmitted by tongue and ear. And they came for what they were and as they were, with their light summer clothing, in shirt and frock and apron; with what was left from their last meals in their pantries packed with a few "notions" in sack or pillow-case, and with the ducking-guns, fowling-pieces, or shaky muskets used in old times against the vermin and game in the woods and the Indian skulking in the thicket. And for the most part they were as free to go away as they had been to come. They were enlisted after a fashion, some prime conditions of which were their own convenience or pleasure (page 6 of the octavo edition).

The need of a thorough re-organization of these various bodies was felt both by the Committee of Safety and by the Provincial Congress; and steps were taken at once by the authorities to consolidate the detached companies and skeleton commands, and to bring order out of chaos. According to the Muster-roll of Captain Henry Farwell's company, printed on page 13, re-enlistments began in his command on April 25; and presumably also in the other companies.

At this time a consolidation was made of Farwell's company with Captain James Hosley's company of minute-men from Townsend, an adjoining town. Probably a similar consolidation took place with other companies of like character as to neighborhood of homes, mutual acquaintance, etc. The minute-man had enlisted for a short and indefinite term of service, and, when the emergency was over, his part of the contract was fulfilled. The men whose names appear on the Muster-roll as having served only six days were those, presumably, who re-enlisted in Farwell's company, or in some of the other companies, and remained in the field near Boston. It is known that a few of them joined either Captain Asa Lawrence's company or Captain Joseph Moors's, which were enlisted for a period of eight months, or until the end of the year 1775. The men who are accredited on Farwell's roll of minute-men with seventy miles' travel are those, doubtless, who returned home soon after the reorganization.

After the consolidation of Farwell's company with Hosley's, the roll includes the names of a few men from other towns besides Groton and Townsend. Timothy Stone enlisted from Ashby; Peletiah Russell, from the Coös Country in New Hampshire, and later was a resident of Groton; Jonathan Sawtell, a native of Groton, from Rindge, New Hampshire; and Jeremiah Wier, from Limerick, the old name of Stoddard, New Hampshire.

Among the men who marched in Captain Farwell's company was Amos Farnsworth, who kept a diary from the time he left Groton until the end of October, when he was taken sick and went home. Mr. Farnsworth was a good type of the Middlesex yeomanry, and both by kinship and social intercourse was connected with some of the best families in the neighborhood. He was a fair representative of the average soldier of the period, being more of a patriot than a scholar; and during the times that tried men's souls this quality was of greater importance than a knowledge either of spelling or writing. The diary contains many little entries which throw much side-light on certain events. It is the only contemporary record which tells where the company bivouacked at the end of the first day's march, a fact of some interest to the descendants of the soldiers.

According to the diary, a Townsend member of Captain Farwell's company was wounded in a skirmish with the enemy near Chelsea, on May 27; and two days later there was a funeral in the same company, presumably that of the wounded man, but no name in connection therewith is mentioned. In the Return of Farwell's company, printed on page 16, it is said that William Smith, of Townsend, enlisted on April 19, and that he "Dyed at Cambridge May 29." In the roll, printed on page 15, he is accredited with only forty-one days' service, while most of the other men are accredited with ninety-eight days' service. According to their roll his pay stopped on May 29, which was the day of his death, according to the other roll. See Richard Frothingham's "Siege of Boston" (page 109), for an account of the skirmish, which agrees very closely with that given by Mr. Farnsworth; and see also Miss Sarah L. Bailey's "Historical Sketches of Andover" (page 311).

Without doubt William Smith was the first soldier from Townsend, killed by the enemy in the Revolution, and as the earliest victim to British bullets he deserves some special recognition on the part of that town, even at this late day.

John Burge, also of Townsend, and of the same company, died at Cambridge, presumably from disease, on June 3. See the Return of Farwell's company, on page 16.

Another interesting fact in connection with military usages crops out in the diary. Under date of Monday, June 7, the writer makes an entry, as follows:—"On monday my Brother [Benjamin] Came and took my Plase And on tusday about noon I Sot out on my jurney for home And Arived about ten at night." Again, under date of June 14, he says:—"on wednesday I Took Leve of Frinds And Rode to Cambridge And my Brother Came home."

These two entries seem to show that a man in the army, during the early days of the Revolution at least, could have a temporary substitute when absent; and the Muster-roll of the company furthermore shows that it could be done without loss of pay. In those times military discipline was at a low ebb.

Captain Henry Farwell

Henry Farwell, the youngest child of William and Elizabeth Farwell, of Groton, was born on July 21, 1724. He had been a soldier during the French and Indian War. He also commanded a company at the Battle of Bunker Hill, where he was severely wounded. A musket ball passed through his body and lodged near the spine, whence it was taken out soon after the fight.

Captain Farwell lived near the head of Farmers' Row, one or two hundred feet south of the little brook which runs toward Hazel Grove and forms the source of 'Tuity Brook. An old well near the site of the house is the only trace of the habitation now left. At this homestead he died on January 9, 1804.

Captain Farwell was married, first, on December 6, 1749, to Lydia, eldest child of Samuel and Lydia (Farnsworth) Tarbell; and, secondly, on June 3, 1761, to Sarah Taylor, of Westford, who died, according to her tombstone, on September 15, 1799, aged 66 years. By the first marriage there were three children, and by the second, four children. An entry in the Groton church records, under date of October 12, 1800, probably relates to him also, which would make a third marriage. It is as follows: — "Capt. Henry Farwell to Hannah Worster both of Groton." No papers are to be found in the Middlesex Probate Office at East Cambridge, which throw light on the name of his widow, if he left one. An anecdote told on page 61 of "The Jubilee of Lawrence Academy," refers to him, and not to Jonathan Farwell, as there given.

Captain Farwell's Bullet

The following query was asked in the "Notes and Queries" department of the "Boston Evening Transcript," May 25, 1895, and an answer given in the issue of May 1, 1897.

(5873.) Captain Henry Farwell, who commanded a company of Minute Men from Groton at Bunker Hill, was severely wounded by a musket bullet that entered his body, lodging near his spine.

It was extracted the evening of that day, as recorded in Butler's "History of Groton" [page 268], and he engraved 1775 on the ball, leaving it as a precious relic.

A great-grandson of Captain Farwell's wishes to know who has possession of the engraved ball.

W. P. B.

10 Groton during the Revolution

5837 [5873]. Concerning a musket ball that was extracted from the body of Captain Henry Farwell — Captain Henry Farwell was my great-grandfather. My father, James B. Farwell, had that ball in his possession after the death of my grandfather, Jonathan Farwell. During the absence of my father and mother the house was entered and the box containing the ball was stolen. My father never found it; 1775 was engraved on the ball. It was many years ago that it was stolen. If W. P. B. is a great-grandson of Captain Farwell, I would like to know who he is, as I have no relatives with those initials. There are grandsons by name of May.

If W. P. B. will write to me I will answer any questions concerning the ball.

C. J. F. P.

The initials "W. P. B." stand for William Phillips Brazer, of Lowell; and those of "C. J. F. P." for Mrs. Caroline J. Farwell Pettengill, the wife of Henry Emmons Pettengill, of Wilton, New Hampshire, a great-granddaughter of Captain Farwell, through her father, James Brazer Farwell, and her grandfather, Jonathan Farwell, who was youngest child of the old hero.

The Muster-roll of Captain Farwell's company of minutemen is found among the Revolutionary papers of the Massachusetts Archives (XII. 62) in the State House. A copy is given below, followed by another roll (Archives, XIV. 96) of his company, dated August 1, after its consolidation with Hosley's; and this again by a Return (Archives, LVI. 60), undated, but made in October, 1775.

Captain Asa Lawrence

Asa Lawrence, the youngest son of Peleg and Ruth (Brooks) Lawrence, of Groton, was born on June 14, 1737. He was married, on July 27, 1757, to Abigail King, of Littleton; and they had ten children. He died at Groton, on January 16, 1804; and his widow, at Claremont, New Hampshire, on June 12, 1829, aged ninety-three years. After the death of her husband she made her home in the family of her youngest daughter, Mrs. Abigail Dimond, who lived in that town.

During the latter part of his life, Captain Lawrence dwelt in the north part of the town where he ended his days; but at the breaking out of the Revolution he was living on what is now known as the Lowell Road, about a mile from the First Parish Meeting-house. Like Captain Farwell he commanded a company of Groton Minute-men on April 19; and it is somewhat singular that these two Revolutionary veterans should have lived for a generation after the dangers of a military campaign, and then have died within a week of each other.

Capt. Asa Lawrence's Company

The following affidavit, made by William Adams, of Chelmsford, is found among the Revolutionary papers of the Massachusetts Archives (LV., File H, No. 1) in the volume marked on the back "Worcester Rolls Parcels 2nd. & Mixed Rolls Vol. 2." It gives some interesting facts concerning the service of Captain Lawrence's company; and the roll is, so far as I am aware, the only list extant of the company at that period. There is reason to think that Ephraim Parker was a member, though his name does not appear with the others. Pomp Phillis, one of the privates, was a negro ; then all colors, red, white or black, were warmly welcomed by the patriots.

William Adams of Chelmsford in the County of Middlesex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in the seventy ninth year of my age, do testify and say that I rendered service in the Revolutionary War, that I now receive a Pension for surrices thus rendered ; That in the first part of the Summer of 1778 I enlisted and went to West Point, the Company that I belonged to was Cap<sup>t</sup> Asa Lawrence Company of Groton, the regiment was commanded by Co<sup>l</sup> Poor of Andover or Methuen, some part of our service was rendered at White Plains and Peekskill, this was an eight monthes service, we received our Discharges in the month of February 1779. the Company was commanded principally by the first Lieutenant John Flint of Tukesbury, this Company was made up of men from Groton Chelmsford Bilerica Tukesbury, and other Towns in this vicinity, and I further testify that I have carefully examined the Role of Capt Asa Lawrence Company hereto attached and the principle part of the names born on this Roll are famillier to me, and many of the mens names, born on this Rolle are persons which I am certain were with me in the eight monthes service as above described, and I have no doubt but what it is an origional Roll of the Company which I rendered service in as above described,

Captain Josiah Sartell

Josiah Sartell, the second son of Nathaniel and Mary Sartell, was born probably in England about the year 1710, His father was an English mariner who came to Groton from Charlestown. The son married Mary Green, — by which union there were four children, two sons and two daughters, who all died in their minority, — and they lived on Chicopee Row.

At the time of his death he willed to the town his homestead farm together with an adjoining one, besides some other property. The proceeds arising from the sale of these lands now form a large part of the Groton Ministerial Fund. The men of his company for the most part lived in the northerly and easterly quarters of the town. Captain Sartell was one of the Committee of Correspondence for Groton, and during three years (1775-1777) was a member of the General Court.

About twenty-five years ago his gravestone was removed from the old burying-ground to the new cemetery ; and the epitaph reads as follows : —

JOSIAH SARTELL ESQ.

died Aug<sup>t</sup> 30th 1784. aged 74

MARY SARTELL his widow, died and other relations.

From death's arrest no age is free.

Owing to the slight difference in surnames, there is some confusion in regard to the Sartell and Sawtell families formerly resident in Groton. I am inclined to think, however, that they belonged to the same stock, and that the variation in the name was simply a matter of pronunciation.

Captain John Nutting

The towns of Groton and Pepperell during the Revolutionary period were closely identified, and the social intercourse between them was very intimate. If the families of the two towns were not akin to one another, in a certain sense they were neighbors; and for that reason I include in this work a list of the Pepperell minute-men, commanded by John Nutting, who distinguished themselves in the war. Captain Nutting was a brave officer, but like many other military men of his day, a short time after the Revolution, he became indoctrinated with political heresies, and took an active part in promoting the Shays Rebellion. It is but fair, however, to say that he was highly esteemed by his townsmen, who to a large extent sympathized with him in his views.

Captain Nutting lived in the northerly part of Pepperell, near the Nissitissett River. By the upsetting of a boat, he was drowned in that stream, on May 25, 1816. The two following epitaphs are to be seen in the burying-ground, near the First Parish Meeting-house in that town:—

(Massachusetts Archives, Revolutionary Papers, LVI. 67)

Captain Henry Haskell

Henry Haskell commanded a military company that marched from Shirley on the ever-memorable Nineteenth. For the Muster-roll, see Reverend Seth Chandler's History (pages 122, 123).

Technically they were not minute-men, as designated by Mr. Chandler, and they are not so called in the heading of the roll; and, furthermore, they belonged to Colonel James Prescott's command, which was a militia regiment. The minute-men of that period comprised only one-quarter of the enrolled militia, and in this neighborhood they belonged to Colonel William Prescott's command. It will be noticed that, in the headings of the Muster-rolls, Captain Farwell's company and Captain Lawrence's are both styled "minute-men," while Captain Sawtell's company and Captain Sartell's are not so designated, showing that there was then a distinction between them. Captain John Nutting's company from Pepperell is also styled one of "minute-men;" while other companies are designated as militia, and they were in Colonel James Prescott's command. On that eventful day there was room for all, and the sturdy yeomanry thought more of the substance than of the sound. They may not have been enrolled as minute-men, but when they were needed they marched to the scene of conflict all the same, and did a patriot's duty. A few days after the beginning of the War the expression "minute-man" fell into disuse, and a soldier was spoken of as belonging to the Massachusetts Line or the Continental Army, as the case might be.

In the year 1735 Captain Haskell's father came from Gloucester, and settled in that part of Harvard which is now known as Still River. At this time the son was about a year old, and probably he was born at Gloucester.

Captain Haskell was thrice married: first, on January 6, 1757, to Rebecka Willard, of Lancaster, who died on April 8, 1772; secondly, on December 1, 1772, to Martha Little, of Lunenburg, who died on September 28, 1778; and, thirdly, to Charity Pratt, of Lancaster (published February 10, 1781), who died in December, 1813. During his married life ten children were born to him and his wife. He owned and occupied a farm situated near the Shirley Shakers; and his death took place at Lancaster, on June 10, 1807.

In Lancaster, HENRY HASKELL, Esq. Æt. 73; a Lt. Col. in the revolutionary army.

"Columbian Centinel" (Boston), June 17, 1807.

On April 19, 1900, a monument was dedicated to the men of Shirley who marched on April 19, 1775, under the command of Captain Haskell, and to all others of that town who took part in the War of American Independence.

The following Roll gives a list of the men in Captain Haskell's company, as it was at the beginning of the year 1776. Presumably it was formed largely on the lines of the one that marched on April 19. As it contains so many Groton names, I print the whole list.

Captain Joseph Moors

Joseph Moors, the youngest child of Abraham and Elizabeth (Gilson) Moors, was born at Groton, on May 30, 1738. In the campaign of 1758 he served at the siege and capture of Louisburg, and, on March 4, 1772, was commissioned as adjutant in Colonel James Prescott's regiment, and, on March 9, 1774, as cornet in Captain Benjamin Bancroft's company of troopers in the same regiment. He commanded a company at the Battle of Bunker Hill, and, on January 1, 1776, was commissioned by the Continental Congress as captain of a company in Colonel William Prescott's regiment. After his return from the army he settled on his paternal estate, and carried on the farm where he was born. It is situated on the road leading from the Groton School to Ayer. During a long life, respected both by his neighbors and townsmen, he filled many positions of trust and responsibility among them, and for nine years he represented the town in the General Court.

On July 22, 1761, Captain Moors was married, first, to Lucy, fifth child of David and Elizabeth Stone, who died on August 26, 1773, in the thirty-third year of her age, according to her epitaph; and, secondly, to Sarah, elder daughter of Samuel and Miriam (Morse) Ward, of Natick, who was born on November 25, 1751, and died at Groton, on April 15, 1822, aged seventy years. He died on July 25, 1820, aged eighty-two years.

(Massachusetts Archives, Revolutionary Papers, XV. 70)

Near the end of the Muster-roll of Captain Moors's company, printed on the opposite page, is the name of Amos Fisk within brackets. It was inserted by me in the manuscript so long ago that I have forgotten my authority for doing so. In the original roll at the State House the name was written where a fold in the paper afterward came, and unfortunately it is now entirely gone. Whoever the man was, he did only 26 days' service from a date in the month of May, and drops out of the company on or near June 17. The two men following his name on the roll are known to have been killed in the battle; and one Amos Fisk was captured in the fight and died in Boston jail during the early part of August. His death is recorded in "A Journal kept by John Leach, during his confinement by the British, in Boston Gaol, in 1775," which appears in "The New England Historical and Genealogical Register" (XIX. 258) for July, 1865. He is mentioned also in a list of prisoners taken at Bunker Hill, which is printed in "The New-England Chronicle: or, The Essex Gazette" (Cambridge), September 14, 1775. In this list his Christian name is given as "Amasa," and he is put down as from Pepperell. Perhaps he was Amos, a son of Josiah and Sarah Fisk, who was born on May 12, 1739, in that part of Groton which is now Pepperell. At the date of his birth there was no town of Pepperell, but the whole neighborhood was Groton. The number of miles of travel accredited to him on the roll would seem to indicate that he was living in Groton at the time of his enlistment. My authority for inserting the name in the Muster-roll was entirely independent of the reasons here given, which are now recited in order to show their probability.

The number of soldiers from Groton, who were either killed at the Battle of Bunker Hill or died from their wounds, was twelve, greater than that from any other town; and the Memorial Tablets placed on Winthrop Square in Charlestown, by the city of Boston, on June 17, 1889, are my authority for the statement. They were serving in five different companies of Colonel Prescott's regiment.

Captain Zechariah Fitch

Zechariah Fitch was the eldest child of Zechariah and Elizabeth (Grimes) Fitch, and was born at Bedford, on April 1, 1734. He was married, first, to Rebekah Davis, eldest daughter of Eleazer and Rebecca (Chandler) Davis, who was born on August 2, 1736; and after marriage they settled in Groton. By this union there were two daughters, of whom Abigail, probably the younger, was born in the year 1761. Neither the first wife nor the second lived a long time after the marriage, as it is entered in the Groton church records, under date of August 4, 1763, "Zechariah Fitch of Groton to Lydia Tuck of Bedford;" and, again, under date of February 3, 1767, "Zacheriah Fitch to Sibeles Lakin both of Groton." By the second marriage there were two sons, Richard, born on October 25, 1763, and Joseph, born on February 13, 1766. His third wife, Mrs. Sibyl (Lakin) Fitch, was a daughter of John and Lydia (Parker) Lakin, born on October 16, 1739; and she died on October 11, 1806. By her there were four sons and three daughters. Late in life, on May 11, 1809, Captain Fitch was married at Pepperell to Betsey Tuttle, of Littleton, as his fourth wife, who died on January 5, 1823. His own death had taken place previously on September 2, 1820. His father was a younger brother of John Fitch, from whom the city of Fitchburg takes its name.

52 Groton during the Revolution

According to tradition Captain Fitch was a fine-looking man, tall, straight, and well-proportioned, who wore short clothes set off with knee-buckles and shoe-buckles, as was common in those days. The sword carried by him in the Revolution was given to the Groton Historical Society by his venerable granddaughter Mrs. Amelia Fitch Rowe, on October 2, 1894; and his commission as Captain, also given by her, on October 1, 1898. Fitch's Bridge over the Nashua River, near his farm, takes its name from him.

A note-book kept by him is printed in the "Groton Historical Series" (IV. 378-385), which gives a few facts concerning the itinerary of his company from Groton to Fort Ticonderoga, and thence back again to Groton. In the book he writes:— "August y<sup>e</sup> 3<sup>d</sup> 1776 I Rec<sup>d</sup> my Comision y<sup>e</sup> 21st I rec<sup>d</sup> orders to march as soon as Posable to Bennington ye 28 I marched from Groton," etc. This note-book I bought a long time ago at a junk shop in Boston.

Within two or three years Mrs. Rowe, has given me some interesting documents relating to her grandfather's company. Among them are several Pay-rolls with the names of the men, which are not found elsewhere, besides other manuscript papers printed below.

On page 45 reference is made to a list of prisoners taken at Bunker Hill, on June 17, which is printed in "The New-England Chronicle: or, The Essex Gazette" (Cambridge), September 14, 1775. Partly for the convenience of the reader, and partly for the purpose of filling out some blank space here, I copy from the list the names of those persons who belonged in this neighborhood, as follows:—

Lieut. Col. Parker	of Chelmsford	Dead
Capt. Benjamin Walker	Ditto	Ditto
Lieut. Amaziah Fosset	Groton	Ditto
Serjeant Robert Phelps	Lancaster	Ditto
Oliver Stevens	Townsend	Ditto
Amasa Fisk	Pepperrell	Ditto
Archibald M'Intosh	Townsend	Ditto
David Kemp	Groton	Ditto
James Dodge	Edenburgh, Scot.	Ditto
Stephen Foster	Groton	Ditto

Lieutenant Amaziah Fassett, of Groton, an officer in the Westford company, died, on July 5, in Boston Jail, where these prisoners were confined. Amasa Fisk was undoubtedly the same as Amos Fisk who is mentioned on page 45. Without doubt James Dodge, of "Edenburgh, Scot.," was identical with James Dodge of Captain Asa Lawrence's company, who was taken prisoner on June 17, and died in Boston.

The following Resolve is of interest, as it was passed only four days after the breaking out of hostilities. A few manuscript alterations of certain figures appear in the text of the original broadside, which in the copy are indicated within brackets. Such changes were added in order to make the Resolve conform to several amendments passed by the Provincial Congress on April 25.

It was voted, on April 24, that 300 copies of this Resolve "be printed in handbills," from one of which the copy given below is made. See "The Journals of each Provincial Congress of Massachusetts in 1774 and 1775" (Boston, 1838).

Captain Job Shattuck

Job Shattuck was a son — the youngest of eight children — of William and Margaret (Lund) Shattuck, and was born at Groton, on February 11, 1736. He began his military life as a private in Captain Ephraim Jones's company, which served in an expedition sent to Nova Scotia under Colonel John Winslow in the year 1755 to bring away the poor French families from that Province. He went as First Lieutenant in a militia company, that marched from Groton on April 19, 1775, of which Josiah Sartell was Captain, and Shattuck Blood, Second Lieutenant. There is no record at the State House to show that he was at the Battle of Bunker Hill, as has been stated in print. His name is found next on the Muster-roll of Captain Henry Haskell's company, dated at Cambridge, January 13, 1776, where he appears still as a First Lieutenant. On another document (Massachusetts Archives, XLI. 148), dated January, 1776, he appears as the captain of a company recently formed, and was duly commissioned by the Council, on February 12. This company went to Boston when that town was evacuated by the British troops in March. Throughout the War Captain Shattuck's career was honorable and patriotic, and no soldier had a better record for his military service. Unfortunately for his good name, a few years later, he became a leader in Shays's

66 Groton during the Revolution

Rebellion, which broke out during a very gloomy period in the history of the Commonwealth. While there may have been some extenuating circumstances connected with the movement, no valid excuse can be given for the steps then taken in order to right political wrongs.

It is enough to say that Captain Shattuck, for his part in the insurrection, was tried before the Supreme Judicial Court and convicted of treason, and sentenced to be hanged on June 28, 1787, but on the day before this, a reprieve was granted until July 26; then, on the day preceding this, the execution of the sentence was again postponed to September 20; and on the 12th of that month he received a full and unconditional pardon.

It is but just to his memory, however, to add that he was a member of the church and much respected by his townsmen. At the time of the rebellion he was near the middle age of life, and a man of great bodily vigor. He was the son of a respectable farmer, and himself a large land-owner. Strong and athletic in person, skilled in the use of the broadsword and proud of the accomplishment, utterly insensible to fear and having a good war-record, — all these qualities, aided by his position and means, gave him great influence among his neighbors. He paid dearly for his errors, as the crutch which he used until the day of his death would testify; and we can well afford now to be charitable to the memory of the poor misguided men who took part in that needless and wicked rebellion.

Captain Shattuck died at the home of his youngest son Noah at Groton, on January 13, 1819. He was married, first, on May 25, 1758, to Sarah, eldest child of Samuel and Sarah (Holden) Hartwell, who was born on March 19, 1738, and died on May 5, 1798; and, secondly, on May 2, 1800, to Mrs. Elizabeth Gragg, daughter of William and Miriam Lakin, and widow of John Gragg, to whom she was married on October 19, 1763, who died on June 1, 1824, five years after the death of her second husband.

Captain Shattuck organized a company which did duty for a few days in the spring of 1776, when the town of Boston was evacuated. The following papers relate to the matter, and give the pay-roll of the company.

70 Groton during the Revolution

Captain Shattuck organized another company which did duty in the neighborhood of Fort Ticonderoga; and on the rolls at the State House it is credited with five months' service from July 1 to November 30, 1777. According to Amos Farnsworth's Diary, it marched from Groton on July 23, and returned on December 7. The following Abstract of a Muster-roll is the only list of the company that I have been able to find:—

Captain Nathaniel Lakin

Captain Lakin was the youngest son of James and Elizabeth (Williams) Lakin, of Groton, where he was born on December 13, 1728. His marriage is entered on the church records, under date of January 23, 1755, as follows:—"Nathaniel Lakin of Pepperrill & Sybil Parker of Groton." The company was recruited from the neighborhood of Groton, and the men belonged in various towns. I print both the Muster-roll and the Pay-roll, which are very similar, but not identical. My grandfather, Samuel Lawrence, was a commissioned officer in the command.

At the beginning of the War Captain Lakin was a minuteman, and at different times during the Revolution he served as captain in various regiments. His term of service extended at intervals to the end of the War.

Classes of Soldiers

The following Resolve, passed by the General Court on December 2, 1780, explains the division of the inhabitants into various "Classes," as mentioned below. Under the call ordered at this time the town of Groton was directed to raise twenty-one men for the Continental Army toward the 4240 which were needed to complete the quota of the Commonwealth. On February 26, 1781, a supplementary Resolve was passed; and still later, on March 7, 1782, another Resolve, under which latter call the town was ordered to raise eight men for the Army, toward the 1500 which were then needed.

And it is further Resolved, That the several towns and plantations within this Commonwealth be, and hereby are authorized to agree (if they think fit) upon classing the inhabitants thereof at a legal town-meeting called for that purpose, in order to procure their proportion of soldiers to serve in the Continental army, for three years or during the war: And in all towns and plantations where the mode of classing shall be adopted, the selectmen of such towns, and the assessors of such plantations, or such committee as the town or plantation shall appoint for that purpose, shall divide all the inhabitants thereof, with others who were assessed in the hard-money-tax, into as many classes as according to the annexed schedule, there are men required of such town or plantation, in proportion to their several taxes, intermixing poor with the rich, so as to make the several classes as nearly equal in property and in number of polls as may be with convenience; and each of said classes shall, on or before the twentieth day of January next, procure a good able-bodied effective soldier to serve in the Continental army three years or during the war, unless such town or plantation shall in some other way procure the whole number of soldiers to be by them raised: And that in case any one or more of said classes shall neglect or refuse to procure the soldiers assigned them, within the limited time aforesaid, such town or plantation is hereby empowered and directed to procure such soldier for each class so neglecting of such town or plantation, and the assessors shall assess said classes, or the several neglecting individuals thereof, in the same proportion they were severally assessed in the hard-money-tax, the full value of the sum which shall be expended in procuring said soldier, with an additional sum not exceeding double the sum advanced to procure the said soldier, as the said town shall determine; and the several collectors of such towns or plantations are hereby authorized and required to collect said assessments in the same manner as they are directed by law to collect town taxes, and pay in the same according to the direction contained in the warrant which they may receive from the selectmen or assessors of such towns or plantations for the purpose of collecting said assessments; and the said selectmen or assessors are hereby authorized to grant such warrants, agreeable to the form by law prescribed for collecting town taxes, mutatis mutandis. Extracts from the Town Records

The following extracts, relating to the action of the town on several occasions during the early part of the Revolution, are taken from the town records. As the volume for that period is not numbered, I can indicate only the pages where the extracts are found.

September 12, 1774.

Voted To Raise the Sum of Forty pounds to buy Arms and Ammunition, in addition to the Town Stock, which Sum is to be laid out at the Descretion of Mess<sup>rs</sup> Moses Child Jonathan Clark Lewis and Isaac Woods, who are a Committee for that purpose.

January the 3<sup>d</sup> 1775

The Town met according to adjournment and the proceedings of the late Continental Congress being Read and particularly their Association

Voted Unanimously, That they would abide by their Association

Then a Draught of a Covenant was Read, which was Unanimously Voted to be accepted.

The proceedings of the late provincial Congress being read the Town unanimously Voted to Comply with the same.

110 Groton during the Revolution

Then a Draft of a Vote was presented and read in the following words, which was Accepted & ordered to be recorded.

Whereas it is Expressly recommended by the Continental Congress, to the Provincial Conventions and to the Com<sup>tee</sup> in the respective Colonies to Establish such further regulations as they may think proper for carrying into Execution their Association

And Whereas the provincial Congress did on the 5th Dec<sup>r</sup> last, Resolve and recommend as their opinion, for the Effectual Carrying into Execution, the American Congress Association that from and after the 10th Oct<sup>r</sup> next, there shall not be sold or purchased any good[s], Wares or Merchandize directly or indirectly purchased from G. Brittain or Ireland, — molasses, Syrups, panela, Coffee or piemento, from the Brittish plantations, or from Dominico, Wines from Madeira, or the Western Islands, and foreign Indigo, either before or after the first of Dec<sup>r</sup> instant, unless the Acts and parts of Acts of Parliament Enumerated in a paragraph of the American Congress Association subsequent to the 14th Article shall then be repealed ;

Then the meeting was Dismissed.

Non Associator's Advertisement.

Whereas The Town of Groton at a legal meeting on the Seventh day of March last, Voted unanimously, that the Names of all the Inhabitants of s<sup>d</sup> Town, who refused to sign their Association paper, wherein the Subscribers were obligated Strictly to adhere to the American Continental Association, should be posted by the Com<sup>tee</sup> of Correspondence in the several publick houses within s<sup>d</sup> Town, and that their names should be entered on the Town Book of records, by the Town Clerk, that so it might be known which of s<sup>d</sup> Inhabitants, are apparently unfriendly to our Happy Constitution, and do (so far) endeavour to prevent a Union &c

In Compliance with s<sup>d</sup> Vote, we hereby notify the Publick, that said Association paper was offered to the Rev<sup>d</sup> Samuel Dana, Joseph Sheple, Jonas Cutler and Joseph Chase, who did refuse to sign the same, and it is Expected that all those who have signed s<sup>d</sup> Association will Remember their Covenant.

Revolutionary Papers

Among some old manuscripts found in the office of the selectmen at Groton was a small parcel, marked in Mr. Butler's handwriting, "Papers relating to the Revolution." They comprise a dozen or more printed Broad-sides, Resolves, Proclamations, etc., issued during the Revolutionary period, and numerous certificates and receipts given by officers and soldiers, besides other writings of a miscellaneous character. They comprise, also, many papers relating to the Shays Rebellion, which for the most part are returns, duly signed by the proper officers, that various insurgents had delivered up their arms, and had taken the oath of allegiance. Such lists contain the names of more than seventy Groton men who had been in open rebellion against the State government. These old manuscripts form an interesting collection of papers, and throw much side-light on the military history of the town during the Revolution and the period immediately following. I have had them carefully arranged and placed in a volume, lettered on the back "Papers relating to the Revolution;" and they are now in the possession of the Town Clerk. In order to render these papers accessible to the local antiquary, I give copies of them below. While some may seem to be of trifling importance or value, they all shed new light on the particular service of individual soldiers.

The signatures to the following paper have been cut off, so that it is not known what names were originally attached. Evidently the signers were of Tory proclivities; and probably the mutilation was not done till after such persons were held in disgrace. The date of the writing is somewhat uncertain, and there is no good clew to follow.

114 Groton during the Revolution

MAY PLEASE YOUR HONOURS.

With submission, we beg leave to acquaint you that we are, and desire to continue subjects to the King of great Britain. As to Independence, We have heard much talk of it, but are intirely ignorant of its being declared. Certainly, so great an Event as this ought not to have been done in a Corner, (notified in one or two Towns) It undoubtedly would have been publish'd in every sea Port, and Market Town throughout America. It therefore cannot be ! it is not so. Independence on Great Britain is not yet declared, because if it were, then certainly so wise a Body as the Honble Congress, wou'd have been consistent with themselves ; they must, they wou'd have acted and proceeded according to humanity and Justice, and the usage of Nations at War, and have issued a Proclamation for such as chose to adhere to the King, to be allowed a limited time in order to dispose of their Effects, and to depart the Continent. Had this been the case, we shou'd have been gone, where we might have earned our Bread by honest industry. But now, we are held here by force, and a stagnation of Trade in genéral through the Continent ; so that there is no other alternative left us, but to go into the Army, or to starve. Our conscience will not let us do the former. Again, may please your Honors, another very forcible reason why Independence is not yet declared, is that, which might with the greatest reason in the world have been expected at so great an Event, so mighty a turn and change of Government ; so great ! as not to be met with in History, excepting only in the case of Holland ; That ! May please your Honors which is ever looked for and granted, even at the Crowning of a new King ; The Prison doors (the clashing of whose locks and bolts strike terror to the hearers) are set open, and the prisoner, in all matters, Murder alone excepted go free ; Once more to have the pleasure of the fresh Air, and looking their merciless Creditor and otherwise oppressors in the face ; and to bless the Cause that set them free. Old things are then done away, all things become new. This may please your Honours is not yet done : Therefore, Independence, most assuredly is not yet publickly declared, because that, so mild a Government as might reasonably be expected from a Republick Form, and its new Laws, wou'd never stain such an Aera by punishing offences done under a former Government. As to what is alledged against us, respecting the paper money, Nothing is more certain, than that, when this currency was made and issued out, We, through the Continent, were, to all intent and purposes the Kings subjects ; and no law by legal authority in being, to make and issue such a Currency ; so that, May please your Honors We utterly deny our being guilty of an offence against the known laws of any Kingdom or State. We stand at the Kings Judgment seat where we ought to be Judged ; and by the laws of the Realm, we desire to stand or fall. But may please your Honors, had this paper Currency at the declaration of Independence (if it be declared) been called in, or allowed by Authority to remain good and in force, also a publick law provided for the punishment of offenders in counterfeiting and defacing it, The case then, wou'd widely have differed from the present ; for then, undoubtedly, those caught in doing this might be justly deemed offenders, liable to punishment by such a law. Upon the whole, May please your Honours, We beg, that, if we have offended against, or violated any law, that it be pointed out to us, for we are not conscious that we have violated any Law in Being. And where no law is, there can be no transgression. a Law may be made to look forward, and to punish the transgressors of that law, but it cannot look back, and punish a matter done any time before any law be provided to make that matter punishable. We instance May please your Honours, in the case of Cain, who was a murderer ; guilty, of the highest Crime, that man cou'd commit against man ; who slew almost half the world at one stroke. The Almighty God did not take his life, because, at that time, there was no law to punish such a Deed. But to shew his abhorrence of so inhuman a Cruelty, his Maker told him he shou'd not prosper, but become a fugitive and a vagabond &c<sup>a</sup> And afterwards, it pleased the great Governor of the World, to make a Law, that, he who shou'd shed Mans blood, by man, shou'd his blood be shed. Murder then became a transgression, to be punished by death. But did not put that law in execution or force against Cain, for the above reason ; but made that law for future generations, and preservation of the lives of mankind.

THE MEETING-HOUSE AND THE COMMON

This cut of the First Parish Meeting-house and the Common is taken from a drawing made in the year 1838 by John Warner Barber, and was printed in his "Historical Collections" of Massachusetts (Worcester, 1839). It represents the Meeting-house which was built in 1755, as it originally appeared, and before it was remodelled in 1839, when it was partially turned round, and the north end of the building made the front, facing the west. On this Common the minute-men and other soldiers rallied on April 19, 1775; and here the ammunition was given out that forenoon by the selectmen of the town, as related below. The powder-house, or "magazine," as it is called in the records, was near-by, and the place handy for the purpose. It stood in the roadway of High Street — which then was not laid out — perhaps thirty-five rods from its north end.

The following paper has a good deal of historical interest. The several articles, therein mentioned, were delivered to the soldiers, just before marching. It must have been a scene well worthy of the dramatic skill of a poet or an artist. Apparently the minute-men and the militia were supplied with ammunition at the same time, and presumably in their respective companies they marched together down the road.

142 Groton during the Revolution

These prisoners belonged to the 71st Regiment of Highlanders, which embarked at Greenock for New England, near the end of April, 1776, before the news of the evacuation of Boston had reached the other side of the water. The regiment sailed in a fleet of seven transports which by stress of weather became separated at sea, and two of the vessels, the "George" and the "Annabella," each with about a hundred troops, on June 16 sailed into Boston Harbor where they were fairly entrapped. After a short engagement they fell into the hands of the Americans. A few days earlier the transport "Ann" had a similar experience, and was taken into Marblehead by privateers; and a few days later the transport "Lord Howe" was captured much in the same way, and brought into Boston. For an interesting account of this episode of the Revolution, the reader is referred to a work entitled "Sir Archibald Campbell, of Inverneill, sometime Prisoner of War in the Jail at Concord, Massachusetts" (Boston, 1898), by Charles H. Walcott.

For references to three of the prisoners, see page 167 where a slight description is given of each one.

166 Groton during the Revolution

The wid<sup>d</sup> Mary Hartwell of Groton Testifies & saith that her Son Edmund Farnsworth went & lived with a man at acton and was to have been bound as an apprentice if he had liked his place; but being Discortented, he inlisted into the army in the Sixteenth year of his age, upon which his master never paid him any wages and withheld his Cloathing— That he served as a Soldier in Cap<sup>t</sup> Moors Comp<sup>y</sup> and went to York; after his return from York came to Groton and lived with the Dopenent all winter and on the 17th of march 1777, inlisted into the Continental army for during the Warr & received his Bounty from Groton and lived with her untill he marched again.

See page 142 for an account of the capture of these Scotchmen who were taken on the "George." Perhaps these men afterward re-enlisted on the side of the Americans. Sir Archibald Campbell was the Lieutenant Colonel of the second battalion of the 71st Regiment of Highlanders. Robert Campbell, mentioned below, was a prisoner of war. See pages 149, 150, for several allusions to him and his wife.

180 Groton during the Revolution

John Campbell Brown, mentioned below as a schoolmaster, was married on March 16, 1775, to Lucy Chase, of Groton; and for a period of nearly three years his marriage is the last one recorded in the town-book, owing, probably, to the confusion of the times.

These can Certify, by the Underwritten Subscribers, That the whole Society of the South part of the Town of Groton; did Agree with John Campbell Brown, to teach School one Month upon Trial, from the Second day of Jan<sup>y</sup> 1775. At the Expiration of which Said Month a Meeting was appointed, and the said Society met who approved of y<sup>e</sup> Government of the School and agreed with y<sup>e</sup> said John Campbell Brown for the time of Six weeks longer at four Dollars <sup>p</sup> month, at the End of ten or twelve days of y<sup>e</sup> said time, one or two of y<sup>e</sup> said Society began to be afraid of the reward becoming due to the Master at the Expiration of the time, that they should have to disburse it themselves, as such, the purport of this Instrument is to desire the Select Men to Insure the reward at the End of the time as y<sup>e</sup> majority of y<sup>e</sup> Society are very well content with y<sup>e</sup> Orders and Rules of the Present School

Issued under the Act of 1765

Revolutionary Items

THE following articles relating to the Revolutionary period have already been printed, for the most part, in the "Groton Historical Series." As a matter of general convenience both to the reader and the student, they are now brought together in this volume where they have been arranged mainly in chronological order. In a few instances, however, changes have been made in the body of the article, when it is not given as a quotation.

The Stamp Act

I give herewith an engraving of a half-crown stamp, in exact size, issued under the authority of the famous Act of 1765, which was affixed to certain papers, documents, etc., by order of the British government. It was the resistance to this impost, on the part of the American colonies, that brought about their separation from the mother country. The Act was soon repealed, however, as the crown authorities found it impossible to enforce the law. On a public occasion once, in an after-dinner speech on April 19, 1850, Mr. Edward Everett, holding up a specimen of the stamp, said: "Yes, sir, that bit of dingy blue paper, stamped with the two and sixpence sterling, created the United States of America, and cost Great Britain the brightest jewel in her crown."

In the autumn of 1854 I procured at the American legation in London one of these memorable stamps. A few years previously a certain number of them had been found by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue during their removal from Old Broad Street to the Somerset House, London. Some of the specimens were given at the time to Americans who were interested in the matter; and it was one of these that I was lucky enough to obtain.

Apparently with a die an impression was made on faded blue paper pasted over parchment, and fastened to the back of it by a narrow strip of tin-foil; and a small piece of white paper, bearing a device as described below, was stuck over the ends of the tin-foil. The impression on the blue paper is not very deep, but yet quite distinct. It contains a crown, with the word AMERICA over the top, and the letter A on one side; and the money value of the stamp is given at the bottom. In the centre of the impression is a double Tudor rose surrounded by the motto of the Order of the Garter. In the cut the foil is represented on the right of the rose. The counter-stamp, or small piece of white paper which was stuck over the ends of the tin-foil on the back, has a crown with the letters "G R," — one letter on each side, — and the figure 3 slightly below; and a double cipher or monogram of G. R. under the whole.

The blue stamps were intended for deeds, wills, and other formal documents, and the price varied according to circumstances. All the specimens that I have seen appear to have been cut out of the corners of parchment, which have been duly embossed, but never used, as the odious Act was repealed so soon.

The stamps for "paper for printing" were made by a cut or a die. I have seen a copy of "The Halifax Gazette: or the Weekly Advertiser," Thursday, February 13, 1766, which bears on the last page such a stamp in red ink, to which has been added a rude engraving in type-metal, representing the Devil with a four-tined fork, on his domestic hearth, in the act of pitching the stamp into the fiery furnace.

In the Supplement to Lossing's "Pictorial Field Book of the Revolution" (II. 877) is given an engraving of what purports to be one of the stamps made for the American colonies in 1765, but this is an error. It is not a stamp struck for the colonies at all, but for home use in England, and does not bear the word AMERICA over the crown.

The Tea Tax

The following "Proceedings" are taken from "The Boston Evening-Post," January 3, 1774. It will be noticed that the meeting was held on the day of the Boston Tea-Party.

Proceedings of the Town of Groton.

AT a Meeting of the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the Town of Groton, assembled at the Public Meeting-House in said Town, on Thursday, Dec. 16th, 1773.

To Consider what is proper for this Town to do relative to the large quantities of TEA, belonging to the Hon. East-India Company, arrived and expected to arrive in this Province, subject to an American Duty.

Chose JAMES PRESCOTT, Esq; Moderator.

Then the Committee of Correspondence for said Town laid before them a Letter which had been agreed upon by the Committees of several Towns, to be sent to all the Towns in this Province, in order to know their minds at this critical Juncture; and having read the same, as also the Votes and proceedings of the Town of Boston, at their late Town Meetings in Nov. last:—The Town came into the following Resolves and Votes unanimously,

That we highly approve of the Conduct of the Town of Boston at their late Town Meetings aforesaid, and the several Resolves they came into, relative to the TEAS sent by the East-India Company to America.—And as we Esteem the late Act of Parliament for the benefit of said India Company as an intollerable Grievance, and a very subtle plan of the Ministry to ensnare and enslave the Americans, preferring the Public Happiness to our own private advantage, We will readily afford all the assistance in our Power, to the Town of Boston and all other of our opprest American Brethren, and heartily unite with them in every Constitutional method, to oppose this and every other scheme that shall appear to us, to be subversive of American Rights and Liberties, and dishonourary to his Majesty's Crown and Dignity, at the risque of our Lives and Substance.

Voted, That our most Cordial Thanks be presented to the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, for their wise, prudent and spirited Conduct at this alarming Crisis, and for their repeated Vigilance and unwearied Endeavours, to recover and preserve the Rights and Liberties of America.

Upon a motion made, Voted unanimously, That the Inhabitants of this Town, will not buy, sell, or make use of any TEA, while subject to an American Duty.

Voted, That the Committee of Correspondence for this Town, be desired to wait upon the several Shop-keepers and Traders, within this Town, and desire them not to buy, sell or any way dispose of any TEA while subject to an American duty, as they would avoid the odium of the Town.

Voted, That the Committee of Correspondence for this Town be desired to forward an attested Copy of the Proceedings of this Meeting, to the Committee of Correspondence in the Town of Boston.

Voted, That this meeting be dissolved. — And it was accordingly dissolved. A true Copy. Attested.

OLIVER PRESCOTT, Town-Clerk.

AT a Legal Meeting of the Inhabitants of the Town of Groton, Assembled May 8th, 1773.

Voted and chose James Prescott Esq; Oliver Prescott Esq; and Josiah Sawtell Gent. a Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Groton, unanimously.

Attest,

OLIVER PRESCOTT, Town-Clerk.

The Boston Port Bill

Colonel Thomas W. Higginson, on page 174 of his "Young Folks' History of the United States" (1898), speaks of the effect of the Boston Port Bill on the public mind, and says: —

Of course, the sympathy of other towns, and even of the other colonies, was at once excited. So a great variety of gifts began to be sent into the suffering town, — grain from Groton, and salt fish from Marblehead, and a flock of two hundred and fifty sheep from Windham, Conn. The southern colonies sent flour and rice; and the middle colonies corn and iron; and many towns sent money for the poor; so that the effect of the Boston Port Bill was entirely different from what the British Government expected.

In this description Colonel Higginson took his main facts from Volume IV. (fourth series) of the "Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society," where is found a copious correspondence between a committee of the town of Boston and various contributors for the relief of the sufferers by the Boston Port Bill. The following letter written by the town clerk of Groton and the reply by the Boston Overseers of the Poor, found on pages 7-10 of the volume, are highly creditable to all concerned: —

GROTON, June 28th, 1774.

GENTLEMEN, — The inhabitants of the Town of Groton, in general, are deeply affected with a sense of our public calamities, and more especially the distresses of our brethren in the Capital of the Province, as we esteem the act of blocking up the harbor of Boston replete with injustice and cruelty, and evidently designed to compel the inhabitants thereof to submission of taxes imposed upon them without their consent, and threatens the total destruction of the liberties of all British America. We ardently desire a happy union with Great Britain and the Colonies, and shall gladly adopt every measure consistent with the dignity and safety of British subjects for that purpose.

194 Groton during the Revolution

In full confidence that the inhabitants of the Town of Boston will, in general, exhibit examples of patience, fortitude and perseverance, while they are called to endure this oppression for the preservation of the liberties of their country, and in token of our willingness to afford all suitable relief to them in our power, a number of inhabitants of this Town have subscribed, and this day sent forty bushels of grain, part rye and part Indian corn, to be delivered to the Overseers of the Poor of said Town of Boston, not doubting but the same will be suitably applied for that purpose ; and we earnestly desire you will use your utmost endeavor to prevent and avoid all mobs, riots, and tumults, and the insulting of private persons and property. And while the farmers are cheerfully resigning part of their substance for your relief, we trust the merchants will not oppress them by raising upon the goods which they have now on hand and heretofore purchased. And may God prosper every undertaking which tends to the salvation of the people.

We are, Gentlemen, your friends and fellow-countrymen. In the name and by order of the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Groton.

OLIVER PRESCOTT, Clerk.

TO THE OVERSEERS OF THE TOWN OF BOSTON.

BOSTON, July 5th, 1774.

SIR, — Your obliging letter directed to the Overseers of the Poor of this Town, together with a generous present from a number of the inhabitants of the Town of Groton, for the relief of such inhabitants of this Town as may be sufferers by the Port Bill, is come to hand. In behalf of the Committee of this Town, appointed for the reception of such kind donations, I am now to return to you and the rest of our benefactors the most sincere thanks. The gentlemen may be assured their donations will be applied to the purpose they intend. We are much obliged to you for the wise cautions given in your letter, and we shall use our best endeavors that the inhabitants of this Town may endure their sufferings with dignity, that the glorious cause for which they suffer may not be reproached. We trust that the non-consumption agreement, which we hear is making progress in the country, will put it out of the power of any of the merchants to take unreasonable advantage of raising the prices of their goods. You will, however, remember, that many heavy articles, such as nails, &c., will be attended with considerable charge in transporting them from Salem. As the bearer is in haste, I must conclude, with great regard for your Committee of Correspondence and the inhabitants of the Town of Groton.

Sir, your friend and fellow-countryman,

Signed by order of the Overseers of the Poor,

SAM. PARTRIDGE.

TO THE COMMITTEE OF THE TOWN OF GROTON,
IN MASSACHUSETTS.

September 6, 1774.

THE Inhabitants of the Town of Littleton being assembled at the Meeting-House in said Town ; First voted and chose Mr. Robert Harris Moderator of said Meeting.

2. Chose Captain Jonathan Reed, Mr. Robert Harris and Mr. Aaron Jewett, a Committee of Correspondence for Littleton.

3. Voted that the present Committee should go to Groton, to meet the Committees of the several Towns in the Neighbourhood on Friday next, agreeable to the Desire of said Committees.

4. Voted, That the Proceedings of this Meeting be published in the publick News-Papers.

Rev. Samuel Dana

It is well known that the Reverend Samuel Dana, minister of Groton from the year 1761 to 1775, at the outbreak of the Revolution, was in sympathy with the Crown. His political views made him unpopular, and caused his dismissal from the parish. An account of the difficulties is given in Mr. Butler's History (pages 179-181). The following notice, by no means clearly expressed, is found in "The New-England Chronicle : or, the Essex Gazette," June 8, 1775 : —

196 Groton during the Revolution

GROTON, May 15th, 1775.

THE Inhabitants of Groton in Town-Meeting assembled, the Rev. Samuel Dana offered that to the Town with Regard to his political Principles and Conduct, with which the Town voted themselves fully satisfied, and that he ought to enjoy the Privileges of Society in common with other Members, and we hope this, with the following by him subscribed, will be fully satisfactory to the Publick.

Oliver Prescott,	}	Committee of Correspondence for GROTON.
James Prescott,
Josiah Sartell,
Isaac Farnsworth,
Moses Child,

I The Subscriber, being deeply affected with the Miseries bro't on this Country, by a horrid Thirst for ill-got Wealth and unconstitutional Power — and lamenting my Unhappiness, in being left to adopt Principles in Politics different from the Generality of my Countrymen ; and thence to conduct in a Manner that has but too justly excited the Jealousy and Resentment of the true Sons of Liberty against me, earnestly desirous, at the same 'Time, to give them all the Satisfaction in my Power ; do hereby sincerely ask Forgiveness of all such for whatever I have said or done, that had the least Tendency to the Injury of my Country, assuring them that it is my full Purpose, in my proper Sphere, to unite with them, in all those laudable and fit Measures, that have been recommended by the Continental and Provincial Congresses, for the Salvation of this Country, hoping my future Conversation and Conduct will fully prove the Uprightness of my present Professions.

SAMUEL DANA.

Groton, May 22, 1775.

“The Essex Gazette” newspaper, at the beginning of the Revolution, was removed from Salem to Cambridge, where it was published under the name of “The New-England Chronicle: or, the Essex Gazette.” It was printed in Stoughton Hall, Harvard College, and the first number under its new title is dated May 12, 1775.

The following paper is found in Peter Force's "American Archives" (fourth series, II. 1109): —

To the Honourable Gentlemen of the Provincial Congress of New-HAMPSHIRE :

That whereas, Jason Russell and John Tarbell, both of Mason, in said Province, did, in a felonious manner, on or about the 20th of May last, retire to a pasture in said Town belonging to Samuel Dana, of Groton, and took from thence a three year heifer, and killed and converted it to their own use ; whereupon, early notice being given to the Committee for said Town, they met, and required of the offenders full satisfaction therefor, but each of them peremptorily refusing to comply therewith : The advice of Committees from the neighbouring Towns being called in, viz : New-Ipswich and Temple, and the criminals being cited to appear before said Committees, not only neglected to make their appearance before us, but, as we learn, have fled to the Army ; and finding ourselves unable to settle the unhappy difficulty by reason of their escape, came into the following Resolution, viz :

Resolved, To refer the matter to your judicious consideration, begging that you will, in your wisdom, take cognizance of the offence, and deal with them in this and in such like case for the future.

EPHRAIM ADAMS, Chairman.

DAVID BLODGETT, Scribe.

Mason, June 26, 1775.

It is probable that Mr. Dana's tory proclivities at this period had some connection with the affair. John Tarbell, who is mentioned in the preamble, was of Groton descent.

Rev. Samuel Webster's Sermon

The following is the title of a sermon, mentioned on page 4, which was preached before the Groton minute-men, on February 21, 1775 : —

198 Groton during the Revolution

Rabshakeh's Proposals | Considered, | in a | SERMON, | Delivered at Groton | February 21, 1775. | At the Desire of the Officers of the | Companies of Minute Men in that | Town. | By | SAMUEL WEBSTER, A.M. | PASTOR OF THE CHURCH AT TEMPLE, | in NEW-HAMPSHIRE. || Boston: Printed and Sold by EDES and GILL, in Queen-Street. 1775. 8vo. pp. 30.

The sermon is singularly meagre in details, and made up largely of theological opinion, perhaps as valuable now as then, but not so highly prized. The author says that a large majority of the town, agreeably to the plan of the Provincial Council, had promised to hold themselves in prompt readiness to act in the service of their country.

Parole and Countersign

According to the Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society (XV. 101) for October, 1876, the parole at the camp in Cambridge on the night of May 21, 1775, was "Groton," and the countersign "Pepperell." These words, doubtless, were suggested by Colonel Prescott, a native of Groton and a resident of Pepperell, who was then commanding a regiment in the Provincial Army.

Battle of Bunker Hill

Groton Men Killed in the Fight

One commissioned officer and ten enlisted men, residents of Groton, were either killed or mortally wounded at the Battle of Bunker Hill. The roll of honor comprises the names of Lieutenant Amaziah Fassett, who fell wounded and died a prisoner in Boston, a few days later, on July 5; Sergeant Benjamin Prescott, eldest son of the Honorable James Prescott, and nephew of Colonel William Prescott, the commander on the American side ; and Privates Abraham Blood, Chambers Corey, James Dodge, Peter Fisk, Stephen Foster, Simon Hobart, Jonathan Jenkins, Robert Parker, and Benjamin Woods.

This loss was the largest suffered by any one town in the battle, and shows the patriotic character of the citizens at that period. These soldiers were serving in five different companies of Colonel Prescott's regiment, and their names now appear on the bronze tablets which have been placed on Bunker Hill by the city of Boston in memory of the brave men who fell in that historic engagement. It is highly probable that Amos Fisk, killed in the battle, was another Groton soldier who fell on that day. See page 45 for a statement of the facts.

Colonel Prescott, the commander of the American forces, and at least three of the Pepperell soldiers who lost their lives in the fight, were natives of Groton.

Error on Bunker Hill Tablets

In connection with the names that are given on the tablets set up by the city, there is a singular error worth noting. David Kemp, of Groton, is named as one of the men who was killed on the Seventeenth, though fortunately he was only captured in that engagement, and afterward was carried to Halifax. By mistake he was reported as dying while a prisoner in Boston, and for a long time his family mourned him as dead. It is not recorded when they first heard of his safety, but probably it was many months after the battle.

In "The Boston-Gazette, and Country Journal" (Watertown), July 29, 1776, it is said :—

Last Tuesday Evening came to town from Halifax, Lieut. Scott of Peterborough, in New Hampshire Government, who was wounded and taken Prisoner at the memorable Battle of Bunker Hill the 17th of June, 1775, and has been a Prisoner ever since. He informs, That he with 13 others broke Goal about 5 Weeks ago, and betook themselves to the Woods, where they seperated ; that Captain Martindale and his first and second Lieutenants, John Brown Rifleman Leonard Briggs of Ware, and himself arrived at Truro at the head of Cobbecut river, after a travel of 3 days, where they procured a boat and got to the Eastward ; that Richard Carpenter formerly Barber in this Town, Philip Johnson Beak, David Kemp of Groton, and Corporal Cruse of Virginia, and two others took the road to Windsor where they were apprehended and confined in irons ; that Benjamin Willson of Billerica, one of the Bunker Hill Prisoners, died lately [on June 10, 1776,] in goal ; and that he left Master James Lovell still confin'd, in high health and spirits.

From the foregoing newspaper account it appears that David Kemp did not die in Boston on September 10, 1775, as is recorded on the Company Return (LVI. 70) among the Massachusetts Archives ; and furthermore, that he was alive nearly one year after the memorable engagement. The following petition, printed in the Journal of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, September 13, 1776, gives the exact date of Kemp's escape as well as other interesting facts : —

A petition of David Kemp, of Groton, setting forth, that his son David Kemp, jun. a soldier in Capt. Parker's company, in Col. Prescot's regiment, was taken prisoner at the Battle of Bunker's-Hill, the 17th June, 1775, and carried to Halifax, where he remained till the 13th June last ; that he was not made up in said Parker's roll, only to the 17th June, therefore praying that his wages to this time may be allowed him.

Read and committed to Capt. Kimball, Mr. Ingals and Mr. White. (Page 104.)

A Groton Man Shot Pitcairn.

In a note-book of the Reverend Jeremy Belknap, according to an extract printed in the Proceedings (XIV. 93) of the Massachusetts Historical Society for June, 1875, it is recorded : —

A negro man belonging to Groton, took aim at Major Pitcairne, as he was rallying the dispersed British Troops, & shot him thro' the head, he was brought over to Boston & died as he was landing on the ferry ways.

It has long been known that Pitcairn was killed by a negro, but this is the first account which has ever connected him with Groton.

First Man to Fire

In the account of Chelmsford, prepared by Henry S. Perham for Hurd's "History of Middlesex County" (II. 249), is found the epitaph of Joseph Spaulding, who died in that town on July 31, 1820. It is there stated that: —

He was among the brave asserters & defenders of the liberties of his country at Bunker Hill, where he opened the battle by firing upon the enemy before orders were given: &, after enjoying for many years the blessings of civil & religious liberty in common with others

He, "sunk to rest
With all his countrys honors blest."

First Man Killed

Amos Foster, a private in Captain Walker's company, Colonel Bridge's regiment, writes, under date of August 3, 1825, as follows: —

I was close by Asa Pollard [of Billerica] when he was killed. He was the first man that was killed. The ball struck the ground and hopped along before it struck him.

Foster's letter is printed in "The New England Historical and Genealogical Register" (XII. 121, 122) for April, 1858. Substantially the same statement appears in the Genealogical Register of Hazen's "History of Billerica" (page 113).

202 Groton during the Revolution

First Man Wounded

In Holland's "History of Western Massachusetts" (II. 420), the author says :—

At the battle of Bunker Hill, Aaron Barr of Myrifiold [now the town of Rowe] was the first wounded man brought into Cambridge, from the field. He belonged to Capt. Maxwell's company. He was struck by a cannon ball in the morning, had his leg taken off, and died the same day.

There has been a discrepancy of statement in regard to the first man killed in the action, as some persons claim the distinction for Pollard, and others for Barr. The evidence appears to be that Pollard was killed instantly, while Barr was carried from the field and died some hours later in Cambridge. The authority for the statement that Barr was the first man killed is the following writing pasted on the Company Roll among the Massachusetts Archives: "Aron Barr, the first man killed on Bunker Hill June 16 [sic], 1775." It appears to have been placed there many years ago, but long after the date of the original record. He was a member of Captain Maxwell's company, Colonel Prescott's regiment, and not of Captain Nutting's company, as stated in the volume of "Bunker-Hill Memorial Tablets" (page 80, note), published by the city of Boston.

Last Man to Leave the Field

In Glazier's "History of Gardner," Massachusetts (page 25), it is recorded that David Foster "was engaged in the Revolutionary war nine months, and was the last man who fled from the enemy at the battle of Bunker hill."

DIED — In Andover, Dea. Isaac Abbott, 91. He was the last to leave the field at the battle of Bunker Hill."

"Boston Daily Advertiser," August 13, 1836.

I leave it for others to settle the discrepancy between these two statements.

An Anniversary of the Fight

The following notice of a death is given in "The Boston Recorder," July 22, 1847: —

In Jamaica, Vt., June 15, Mr. Eleazer Randall, 94, a native of New Braintree, Mass. He was in the battle of Bunker Hill, and was buried 17th June, 1847, at the same hour of the day in which he was engaged in conflict.

Rev. Joseph Thaxter, of Edgartown

Professor Franklin B. Dexter, of Yale University, writes me, under date of November 18, 1896, that he has temporarily in his possession a copy of President Quincy's Memoir of Josiah Quincy, Jr., which contains an interesting note on a fly-leaf. The book was presented to the Reverend Joseph Thaxter (H. C. 1768), of Edgartown, by Abbott Lawrence, on June 17, 1825, when the corner-stone of the Bunker Hill Monument was laid at Charlestown. The note is in the handwriting of Mr. Thaxter, and reads as follows: —

This was given me by the son of Cap<sup>t</sup> [Samuel] Lawrence of Groton who belonged to Prescotts minute Regiment to which I belonged & to whom I preached a military sermon at a regimental muster at Westford the Fall before the Concord Fight. John Robinson of Westford was the Lieutenant Col<sup>o</sup> & led the People with Major Buttericks at Concord Bridge. Cap<sup>t</sup> Lawrence was at his Sons in Boston. It gave me Pleasure to see him the 17 of June at Breeds Hill.

In the year 1774 Mr. Thaxter was preaching as a candidate at Westford, and later received a call to be settled as the minister of the town, which he declined. He served as a chaplain in the army for a while, and in 1780 became the pastor of the church at Edgartown, Martha's Vineyard, where he remained until his death, on July 18, 1827.

Petitions and Accounts

The following Petitions and Accounts, relating to Groton soldiers at the Battle of Bunker Hill, are found in the printed Journal of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, under their respective dates as noted : —

Tuesday, October 17, 1775 (Afternoon).

A Petition of Oliver Prescott, praying Compensation for a Firelock and Accoutrements supply'd by him to James Dodge, who fell in Battle at Bunker's-Hill.

Read and committed to Mr. Wood, Col. Grout and Mr. Hayward.

Asa Lawrence's Petition, praying for Allowance for Cash expended in procuring Tools for Gun Smiths, on Desire of the Committee of Safety, together with his Account.

Read and committed to the Committee on Accounts.

Thursday, October 19, 1775.

THE Committee on the Petition of Oliver Prescott, praying Compensation for a Firelock and Accoutrements supplied by him to James Prescott [Dodge], as is set forth in the Petition ; made Report, which was ordered to lie for the present.

Thursday, December 7, 1775.

An Account of Jonathan Tarbell, for Time of his Servant, Gun, &c. and Cloathing, lost in the Battle of the 19th of April last ; committed to the Committee appointed to consider the Losses sustained in the Battle of the 17th of June last.

Thursday, March 21, 1776 (Afternoon).

An Account of David Kemp, for Loss of Cloaths and other Articles, sustained by his late Son David Kemp, taken in the Engagement on Bunker's-Hill, on the seventeenth of June last, and since dead. [See page 200.]

Read and thereupon Resolved, That there be paid out of the public Treasury of this Colony, to James Prescott, Esq ; for the Use of David Kemp, the Father of the deceased, the Sum of five Pounds, in full.
Sent up for Concurrence.

An Account of James Prescott, Esq ; for Loss of Cloaths and other Articles sustained by his Son Benjamin Prescott, killed in the Battle of Charlestown, on the seventeenth of June 1775, with a Report thereon.

Read, and thereupon Resolved, That there be paid out of the public Treasury of this Colony to James Prescott, Esq ; the Sum of four Pounds eighteen Shillings and eight Pence, in full for the Articles lost when his Son Benjamin Prescott, was killed in the Battle of the seventeenth of June last.

Sent up for Concurrence.

Benjamin Prescott was the eldest child of the Honorable James and Susanna (Lawrence) Prescott, and born on April 16, 1753. He was a minute-man in Captain Asa Lawrence's company, which marched to Cambridge, on April 19, 1775, and was a sergeant in Captain Moors's command at the Battle of Bunker Hill. In "The Prescott Memorial" (page 74), by Dr. William Prescott, it is said that Benjamin was a Lieutenant ; but this is an error. For a short notice of him, see Richard Frothingham's "History of the Siege of Boston" (page 175), where he is again spoken of as a Lieutenant.

The Poor of Boston

During the siege of Boston many of the inhabitants retired to other places in the State ; and certain families, unable to do likewise for want of means, were assigned to particular towns and sent at the public expense. The following extract from the printed Journal of the House of Representatives, November 3, 1775, seems to indicate that the Selectmen of Newburyport had asked to be relieved from the care of certain families sent to that town ; and at the same time it gives the names of some who came to this neighborhood : —

206 Groton during the Revolution

The Committee on the Memorial of the Selectmen of Newbury-Port, reported.

Read and accepted, and Resolved, that the Poor of the Town of Boston, that are now in the Town of Newbury-Port, be destined in the Manner following, viz.

To the Town of Groton, Capt. Phillip Bass, Wife, and three Children ; the Widow Bounds and two Children, and Peter Mers and Wife.

Andover. — Christopher Brazen and Wife, and five Children ; Christopher Brazen, jun, Wife and one Child ; James Henckes, Wife and two Children ; Lewis Follings and Wife.

Leominster. — Mrs. Joanna Trovov & three Children ; Ambross Colby, Wife and three Children ; Mrs. Patterson and two Children ; Mrs. Mary Calf and Daughter in Law, and two Children.

Lunenburg. — Walter Piper, Wife and five Children ; Walter Piper, jun. Wife and Mother, and seven Children ; Joseph Grant and Wife, and Mother and four Children.

Littleton — The Widow Elizabeth Bascom ; the Widow Johnson ; the Widow Mary York.

And the Selectmen of the Towns of Groton, Andover, Leominster, Lunenburg and Littleton, are directed to apply to the Selectmen of Newbury-Port for their Proportion of said Poor, and by receiving a Certificate that they are of the Poor of Boston, and their Names , Age, and the Time when they came out of Boston ; and they are to transport them to their several Towns, according to their Destination, and to be paid out of the public Treasury for the Cost in procuring and Transporting said Poor of Boston to their respective Towns ; and the Secretary is hereby directed to furnish each of the Towns of Groton, Andover, Leominster, Lunenburg and Littleton, with an attested Copy of this Resolve, as soon as may be.

Sent up for Concurrence.

(Pages 227, 228.)

Coat Rolls

The following copies are made from the original papers among the Massachusetts Archives, found in the two volumes marked "Coat Rolls" on the back. Under an early Resolve passed by the Provincial Congress, each soldier of the Province was entitled to a coat, and, so far as was practicable, one made in his own town. This item proved to be of some importance toward the soldier's pay, and was duly claimed by every man, or by his heirs, if he himself did not live to draw the coat. The various orders for these coats, still on file at the State House, contain many historical facts and other minor details not recorded elsewhere. The orders, hereinafter given, are found unnumbered in Volume LVII. of the "Revolutionary Papers," File 7. Fortunately the men could fight better than they spelled; and their personal prowess outweighed any deficiency in their early education.

According to the following certificate Chambers Corey was killed at the Battle of Bunker Hill. He belonged in Groton, and his name duly appears in the list on the Bunker Hill tablets. Oliver Parker, who signs the certificate, was captain of the company at the time of the Battle. Captain Parker was the same person as Lieutenant Oliver Parker in Captain Lawrence's Company of minute-men, who marched from Groton to Cambridge on April 19. See Return on page 49, where is found an earlier record of Corey's death. The date of the paper is there incorrectly printed as October 1, instead of October 7.

Major Samuel Lawrence

The following article on Major Samuel Lawrence, written by the late Miss Emily Seaver, of Rutland, Vermont, a great-granddaughter, was printed in "The American Monthly Magazine" (V. 107-110) for August, 1894, where it appears in connection with a similar sketch of Colonel Timothy Bigelow, of Worcester, under the heading of "Two Revolutionary Soldiers." It is a just tribute to the memory of an old soldier, and gives an interesting account of certain events in his life. He ended his days at Groton, on November 8, 1827, surrounded by a large family of children, whom he lived to see grow up and prosper.

Samuel Lawrence

The following is a brief account of two soldiers of the Revolution, written not because they were distinguished or great, but just because they were examples of the spirit and tone of the common people, for the time has passed away forever when History concerned herself only with the heroic deeds of kings and knights and lords, and we realize that we can best understand any great struggle by the record of the popular sentiment ; by the sacrifices the common people were willing to make for it. Of the two portraits in this sketch, one is that of a farmer, a true son of the soil, the other a mechanic in what was then the first town of importance in Massachusetts. Unlike in all other circumstances, yet animated by the same spirit of patriotism, with "unfailing loyalty they gave all they had to give to the cause of their country's independence."

Samuel Lawrence was the son of Captain Amos Lawrence, and descended from John Lawrence, who came over from England about 1630. John settled originally in Watertown near Boston, but afterwards removed to Groton, about thirty miles inland, and was one of the original proprietors. Many of his descendants of the eighth generation are still living there. Samuel was born April 24, 1754. He was consequently just twenty-one at the commencement of the War of Independence. The news of the Concord fight reached Groton about ten o'clock on the morning of the eventful 19th of April. Samuel was a corporal in one of the Groton companies of Minute Men, and he was plowing his father's field in the sweet April sunshine, his neighbor, General Oliver Prescott, rode up, shouting, "Samuel, the British are coming ; notify your men !" Leaving the plow and mounting the general's horse, Samuel made a circuit of seven miles, calling on all the men of his company, and returned to his father's house in fifty minutes. The company met at the church, where a brief religious service was held, arms and ammunition were distributed, and at one o'clock the two Groton companies and the Pepperell company were on the road and marched with all possible dispatch to Concord and Lexington. They were, however, too late to take part in the battle, and so marched on to Cambridge, where were the headquarters of the American Army, and that night, which marked the commencement of the siege of Boston, the Middlesex companies were on duty guarding the roads which led to the town. And now the militia from far and near flocked to Cambridge. Most of the farmers, hastening from the fields, brought nothing with them but their guns and the clothes they had on. It was, therefore, a welcome sight when, as soon as he could collect a wagonload of provisions, Captain Amos Lawrence drove to the lines with welcome stores for his son and neighbors.

216 Groton during the Revolution

The Middlesex regiment was commissioned May 26, and he was orderly to its commander, Colonel Prescott. The regiment took an active part in the battle of Bunker Hill. Ensign Lawrence was near Dr. Joseph Warren when he was shot. Captain Farwell, of his company, was severely wounded, and he himself received a wound in the arm, while a bullet passed through his hat. Had he been a little taller it would have passed through his brain. Ensign, afterwards Adjutant, and then Major Lawrence, remained in the Army for more than three years, his regiment being in active service all the time in Massachusetts and New York, where he was on General Sullivan's staff; in New London, and, finally, at the battle of Rhode Island, during which time he was at home for only two brief furloughs. The first of these was in July, 1777, when, the regiment being again in Cambridge, he asked and obtained leave to go home for a few days for the express purpose of marrying Miss Susanna Parker, to whom he had been engaged for more than two years. The marriage took place at this time in compliance with the advice of Major Lawrence's mother, who said that if anything happened to Sam, Susan had better be his widow than his forlorn damsel — not a very cheerful reason for a wedding; nor was the ceremony concluded before the ringing of the bell gave the alarm calling all the soldiers to arms. Hardly were the young couple pronounced man and wife when they were separated, and within an hour the bridegroom was on his march again to Cambridge. The alarm proved to have been unnecessary, and his colonel granted the young soldier leave to return for a few days to provide for his bride's comfortable sojourn in his father's house. He was allowed another short furlough at the end of the year, the regiment being in winter quarters in Rhode Island. In September, 1778, immediately after the battle of Rhode Island, the last battle fought on New England soil, Major Lawrence resigned his commission and left the Army, returning home to his native town. Here he lived for nearly fifty years, rearing a large family, exercising a boundless hospitality (his daughters said they might as well keep a tavern), interested in every undertaking for the growth and welfare of the town, and one of the trustees of the Groton (now Lawrence) Academy. It is a curious illustration of the way in which his military life was merged in that of a civilian that he was never called "Major," but always "Deacon" Lawrence, having been made a deacon of the church at the age of twenty-nine. The brief romance of his early life seemed to have quite faded with the light of common day, and yet not wholly so, for with his Groton comrades he formed a club where the veterans met to recall the stirring events of their youth ; and as at the close of a wintry day we have seen the eastern hills all glowing with crimson splendor from the rays of the setting sun, so one last gleam gilded the last days of the good man's life. On the 17th of June, 1825, the corner-stone of Bunker Hill Monument was laid. General Lafayette, the idol of the American Army, was present by special invitation, having crossed the ocean in a vessel sent by the American Government to bring him, and Daniel Webster pronounced the oration. Seated before him were the veterans who had "toiled all night and fought all day" fifty years before, and among them Major, now Deacon, Lawrence. Into every human life comes at some time, sooner or later, one drop at least of perfect and unmixed happiness, and when Mr. Webster in the course of his oration (one of the three finest that he ever delivered) addressed these old soldiers, "And you, venerable men," and they rose by a common impulse to their feet, they tasted that perfect draught. It was too much bliss for the hero of this sketch, for he received the next day a paralytic stroke from which he never recovered, though he lived for more than two years.

Testimony given by Groton Men

The following Certificate and Declaration are printed, with other similar ones, in the "Boston Patriot and Daily Chronicle," June 13, 1818, and were collected at the instance of General Henry A. S. Dearborn who had written "An Account of the Battle of Bunker Hill." Each paper is numbered with Arabic figures in brackets. The Account was first published in "The Port-Folio" (Philadelphia) for March, 1818, and was the occasion of some criticism. For the purpose of answering the strictures the author printed these papers: —

218 Groton during the Revolution

[No. 13.]

Certificate of the Rev. DANIEL CHAPLIN, D.D. of Groton, and the Rev. JOHN BULLARD, of Pepperell.

This may certify the public, that we whose names we have given, were in the habits of intimacy with Col. W. Prescott, of Pepperell, a man of the strictest integrity, during most of the period after he left the revolutionary army until his death ; that at sundry times in conversation with him about the war, particularly about the battle of Bunker Hill, so called, he uniformly told us, that Maj. General Warren came to the Fort on Breed's Hill, which had been formed the night preceding, a little before the British made an attack on the works ; that he, Col. Prescott, said to General Warren, ' I am happy to see you, General,' or using words to the same effect, ' for you will now take command, and I will obey your orders, and am relieved.' Said General Warren, to him in reply, ' I have no command here, Col. Prescott, I am a volunteer, I came to learn actual service.' Prescott said, ' I wish then you would look at the works we have thrown up, and give your opinion.' Warren replied, ' you are better acquainted, Colonel Prescott, with military matters than I am.' After which they immediately parted, and met not again. Col. Prescott further informed us repeatedly, that when a retreat was ordered and commenced, and he was descending the hill, he met General Putnam, and said to him, ' why did you not support me, General, with your men, as I had reason to expect, according to agreement ? ' Putnam answered, ' I could not drive the dogs up.' Prescott pointedly said to him, ' if you could not drive them up, you might have led them up.' We have good reason to believe further from declarations of some of our parishioners, men of respectability, whose veracity cannot be doubted, who belonged to Col. Prescott's regiment and were present through the whole service, that General Putnam was not on Breed's Hill the night preceding, or on that day, except that just before the attack was made, he might have gone to the fort and ordered the tools to be carried off, that they might not fall into the hands of the enemy in the event of his carrying the works, and holding the ground, and that he and his men, with Col. Gerrish, remained on the side of Bunker Hill towards the neck during the whole action.

[No. 14.]

Declaration of Deacon SAMUEL LAWRENCE, of Groton.

I, Samuel Lawrence, of Groton, Esquire, testify and say, that I was at the battle of Bunker Hill, (so called) in Colonel William Prescott's regiment ; — that I marched with the Regiment to the point on Breed's Hill, which was fixed on for a redoubt ; that I assisted in throwing up the breast-work, and in forming a redoubt, under Col. Prescott, who directed the whole of this operation. — The work was begun about nine o'clock in the evening of June 16th, 1775. I was there the whole time, and continued in the redoubt, or in the little fort, during the whole battle, until the enemy came in and a retreat was ordered. General Putnam was not present either while the works were erecting, nor during the battle. I could see distinctly the rail fence and the troops stationed there during the battle, but General Putnam was not present as I saw. After the retreat was ordered, the troops retreated towards Bunker Hill, and continued over and on the side of the hill (I was on the side of the hill) towards Charlestown neck.

Just before the battle commenced, General Warren came to the redoubt. He had on a blue coat and white waistcoat, and I think a cocked hat, but of this I am not certain — Col. Prescott advanced to him, said 'he was glad to see him, and hoped he would take the command.' Gen. Warren replied, 'no — he came to see the action but not to take command ; that he was only a volunteer on that day.' Afterwards I saw General Warren shot ; I saw him when the ball struck him, and from that time until he expired. I knew General Warren well by sight, and recollected him perfectly when Col. Prescott offered him the command, and was sorry to see him so dangerously situated, as I knew him to be a distinguished character, and thought he ought not to have risked his life without command on that occasion. No British officer was within forty or fifty rods of him, from the time the ball struck him, until I saw he was dead. I have read General Dearborn's account of the battle, and think it correct, particularly with regard to the occurrences at the gateway of the redoubt.

Dr. Nehemiah Abbot

Amos Lawrence (b. 1716, d. 1785) married Abigail Abbot, and one of their four sons was Deacon Samuel Lawrence; and hence later the surname was brought into the family as a given name. Deacon Lawrence, the executor of the estate advertised below, was a nephew of Dr. Nehemiah Abbot, who died on July 13, 1785, without children. He had a son born on December 16, 1792, whom he named "Abbott"; and this son afterward became somewhat noted in various ways.

Lieut. Amaziah Fassett

In Richard Frothingham's "History of the Siege of Boston" (fourth edition, page 347, note), there is a reference to Amos Lawrence (b. 1786, d. 1852) with an allusion to his father, Deacon Samuel Lawrence, and to "his uncle," Lieutenant Amaziah Fassett, who fell mortally wounded at the Battle of Bunker Hill, and died, a prisoner in Boston, on July 5, 1775. While years ago I had heard of a relationship between the

222 Groton during the Revolution

Lawrence family and the Fassett family, I was unable then to trace the connection; and this circumstance has led me anew to investigate the subject, which I have done with the following result.

Amaziah Fassett was born in the year 1742 at Westford, where he married Ede Richardson, who was born in 1745 also at Westford. She was a daughter of Abiel and Sarah (Boyn-ton) Richardson; and her mother, after the death of Mr. Richardson, became the second wife of William Parker, of Groton, and the mother of Susanna Parker, who was Deacon Samuel Lawrence's wife. In other words, Mrs. Fassett and Mrs. Lawrence had the same mother but different fathers, and consequently were half-sisters. As Samuel and Susanna were not married until July 22, 1777, long after Amaziah's death, the kinship between the two soldiers, at the time of the Battle, was only of a prospective character.

The first progenitor in this country of the Groton family of Fassetts was Patrick, an inhabitant of Malden and Billerica, and perhaps an Irishman.

According to "The Boston Weekly News-Letter," July 26, 1753, Abiel Richardson of Groton, was killed on July 18 of that year, by falling from a rafter, while helping to raise the frame of a meeting-house in Dunstable; and without doubt this man was the father of Mrs. Fassett.

The following Resolve, passed by the General Assembly of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, and numbered XCVI. in the official volume, refers to Lieutenant Fassett, but the name is there misspelled.

Resolve on the Petition of Elisha Rockwood; passed April 9, 1777.
On the petition of Elisha Rockwood, Executor to the last Will and Testament of Amaziah Tasset [Fassett], late of Groton, deceased,

Resolved, That the Prayer of the Petition be granted, and that the Petitioner, Elisha Rockwood, be and he hereby is impowered to make Sale of all the Real Estate mentioned in said Petition, for the most it will fetch, and make and execute a good Deed or Deeds to the Purchaser or Purchasers, he observing the Rules and Directions of the Law relating to the Sale of Real Estates by Executors and Administrators, and giving Bond to the Judge of Probate for the County of Middlesex, that the Proceeds arising from such Sale shall be applied for the Benefit of the Heirs at Law of the said deceased, in the same Proportion as though the same had not been sold.

Capt. Samuel Tarbell

The following Resolves were passed by the Legislature of Massachusetts, and are found in the several editions of "Resolves of the General Assembly of the State of Massachusetts-Bay" of their respective dates. The petition, printed on page 225, refers to the estate mentioned in Resolve CLIII., and shows furthermore that Tarbell was dead in the early part of 1781. See Hill's "History of Mason," New Hampshire (page 220), for an allusion to him. The decease of his son, Captain Samuel Tarbell, is announced in the "Columbian Centinel" (Boston), March 12, 1796, under Deaths, as follows:—

At Groton, the 4th inst. Capt. Samuel Tarbell, late an officer in his Britannic Majesty's American Dragoons.

This son was a refugee in New York during the early part of 1781. See page 225 for an allusion to the fact.

But the said Tarbell has nevertheless absconded and failed of appearing agreeable to the conditions mentioned in the bond aforesaid; and there is great danger of his disposing of the whole of his estate, and the public thereby be defrauded. And whereas the Hon. Robert Treat Paine, Esq; Attorney General to this State, being necessarily absent attending the Superior Court: Therefore*

Resolved, That Perez Morton, attorney at law be, and hereby is empowered and directed to bring forward a process upon the bond given by said Tarbell on the fourth of December last, in behalf of the Government and People of this State of Massachusetts-Bay, and pursue the same to final judgment and execution; and law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

Resolve empowering James Prescott, Esq; to lease out the Estate of Samuel Tarbell of Groton; pass'd April 10, 1780.

Whereas this State by their Attorney did in the year 1778 put in suit one certain obligation and recovered a judgment of court against Samuel Tarbell, then of Groton (since fled to the enemy) for the forfeiture of the penalty mentioned in said obligation, and have since levied execution upon some real estate to satisfy said judgment, which real estate consisting of some land and buildings are now become the property of this State, and no person authorized to take care of the same: Therefore,

Resolved, That James Prescott, Esq; be and he is hereby appointed and fully empowered to lease out for one year, ending the 1st day of April 1781, the aforementioned lands and buildings for the most they will fetch, and to call upon any person or persons for any money justly due to said State for the past improvement of said estate (if any there be) and to pay in all such sums of money as he may receive to the Treasurer of this State, taking duplicate receipts therefor, and lodge one of said receipts in the Secretary's office.

At this time the Honorable James Prescott, of Groton, was one of a Committee of three appointed for Middlesex County, to sell forfeited estates. Amos Lawrence, the petitioner, was the father of Deacon Samuel Lawrence; he died on June 20, 1785, when his son inherited the farm, which still remains in the possession of the family.

Col. William Prescott

At a meeting of the Massachusetts Historical Society, held on June 9, 1887, Dr. Samuel A. Green made the following remarks:—

In the early part of last month (May 4) I had the pleasure of meeting a kinswoman of Colonel William Prescott, who is probably the only person now living who ever saw the hero of Bunker Hill, and certainly the only one who ever knew him or ever talked with him; and her recollections are interesting. I refer to Mrs. Sarah (Chaplin) Rockwood, a resident of Cortland, Cortland County, New York, who was the youngest daughter of the Rev. Daniel Chaplin, D.D., of Groton, the last minister of the town during the period when it formed but a single parish. Her mother was Susanna, eldest daughter of Judge James Prescott, Colonel William's elder brother. Mrs. Rockwood was born at Groton on November 8, 1785, and Colonel Prescott, her great-uncle, died on October 13, 1795,—so that she was ten years old at the time of his death. The date of her birth was duly entered in the town-records, and the entry corresponds with that in her family Bible.

She describes him as a tall, well-proportioned man, with blue eyes and a large head. He usually wore a skull-cap; and he parted his hair in the middle, wearing it long behind, braided loosely and tied in a club with a black ribbon, as was common in those days. He had a pleasant countenance, and was remarkably social and full of fun and anecdote. He was dignified in his manners, and always had the bearing of a soldier.

I am satisfied that her recollections of that early period are clear and distinct. She shows in many ways that her memory of events long since past is still good, as it is of more recent ones. Although she has entered upon the second year of her second century, she reads the newspapers, and takes more than an ordinary interest in public affairs.

Mrs. Rockwood died at Cortland, New York, on November 26, 1889, having reached the remarkable age of 104 years and

228 Groton during the Revolution

18 days. Her funeral took place on November 29; and it is a source of sad satisfaction to me that I was enabled to be present at the last rites paid to her memory. According to the church-records she was baptized on November 13, 1785.

Prescott Monument

In the autumn of 1879 a monument was erected by the town of Groton, which bears the following inscription: —

COLONEL WILLIAM PRESCOTT
COMMANDER OF THE AMERICAN FORCES
AT THE BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL
WAS BORN ON THE 20TH OF FEBRUARY 1726
IN A HOUSE WHICH STOOD
NEAR THIS SPOT

It stands on the heater piece, near the southerly end of Main Street; and in connection with two other memorial stones it was dedicated with appropriate exercises in the Town Hall, on February 20, 1880, when an historical address was delivered. By a vote of the town, on April 2, 1894, this plot of land was named Prescott Square.

See Frontispiece for a cut of the monument.

A bronze statue of Prescott was set up within the grounds of the Bunker Hill Monument Association at Charlestown, on June 17, 1881, when an address was delivered by the Honorable Robert C. Winthrop. It was made by William W. Story, the eminent sculptor; and, as there is no portrait of Colonel Prescott extant, Mr. Arthur Dexter, a great-grandson, then living in Rome, was taken in a general way as a model for the features.

Capt. Asa Lawrence

Asa Lawrence, mentioned below, commanded one of the two companies that marched from Groton to Cambridge on the alarm of April 19, 1775. He was a son of Peleg Lawrence, and lived on the farm known later as the Governor Sullivan place. It is situated on the Lowell road and took its name from James Sullivan, who was afterward Governor of the Commonwealth. Sullivan was the Justice of the Peace, who took Lawrence's deposition on February 1, 1779.

See page 8 for references to the skirmish at Chelsea; and for a fuller account see Amos Farnsworth's diary printed in the "Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society" (second series, XII. 81) for January, 1898. It will be noticed that Captain Lawrence speaks of the action as a "Battle."

Miscellaneous Items

Several days before the Battle of Lexington, a hostile incursion by the English soldiers stationed in Boston was expected by the patriots. Its aim was the destruction of stores collected for the use of the Provincial cause; and on this account every movement of the British troops was closely watched. At this time the Committees of Safety and of Supplies voted that some of the stores should be kept at Groton; and, if their plan had been fully carried out, it is among the possibilities of the War that another battle might have been fought in Middlesex County, and that the township of Groton might have been its scene of action. But open hostilities began so soon afterward, that no time was given to make the removal of the stores. It was ordered by these Committees, April 17, 1775, that the four six-pounders be transported from Concord to Groton, and put under the care of Colonel Oliver Prescott. On the next day it was voted that all the ammunition should be deposited in nine different towns of the Province, of which Groton was one, and that one-half of the musket cartridges be removed from Stow to Groton. It was also voted that two "medicinal chests" should be kept at different places in the town, and that eleven hundred tents be deposited in equal quantities in Groton and six other towns. See "The Journals of each Provincial Congress of Massachusetts in 1774 and 1775, and of the Committee of Safety" (pages 516-518).

Mr. Wheildon, in his "New Chapter in the History of the Concord Fight," reprinted near the end of this volume, gives other facts relating to these orders by the Committees of Safety and of Supplies.

During this period a committee was appointed to inspect the stock of powder in the Province, and report the amount on hand in the various towns. This they did on May 25, 1775, when there was, according to the Report, a barrel of powder in Groton, — kept probably in the powder-house or magazine which, two years later, was enlarged by the Board of War. This magazine was built on the land of Benjamin Bancroft, afterward owned by the Honorable James Prescott, Jr. It was situated in the roadway of the present High Street, — which then was not laid out, — perhaps thirty-five rods from its north end. It was a stone building, about twelve feet square, and taken down probably in the summer of 1829. For a long time previously it was not used for any purpose, and became much dilapidated. Some of the material from the building was used in stoning a well, dug near the Meeting-house in order to supply in part Mr. Hoar's barns with water.

The following papers, found at the State House, relate to the magazine, as well as to the Guard having it in charge:

State of Massachusetts Bay. Council Chamber, July 10. 1777.

Whereas it appears that it is absolutely necessary that a Magazine for powder should be erected in some Interior part of this State the other Magazines being insufficient or unsafe Therefore

(Massachusetts Archives, CLXXIII. 549)

Subsequently, on February 3, 1778, the General Court passed a Resolve "That there be allowed and paid out of the public treasury of this State unto the men stationed at Groton, for a guard, the same wages and rations that are allowed to the sea-coast men."

Two years later, on January 13, 1780, another Resolve was passed, directing Joseph Hosmer — forthwith to remove all the powder in the magazine at Groton, to the following towns, viz. one third of it to Concord, one third to Billerica, and one third to Woburn, to be delivered into the care of the Selectmen of said towns, he taking their receipt therefor, which he is directed to lodge with the Board of War, and as soon as said powder is removed that the guards now doing duty at said magazine in Groton, be discharged from any further service there, and that said Joseph Hosmer, Esq; lay his account of the expence of removing the same before the Committee on accounts for allowance and payment.

This Resolve was afterward so far modified by the General Court, on May 4, that Joseph Hosmer was ordered “to deliver one third part of the powder aforesaid to the care of the Selectmen of Groton, and take their receipt for the same, the Resolve of the 12th [13th] of January to the contrary notwithstanding.”

The following application to the Council, from Dr. Oliver Prescott, relates to the Revolutionary period, and will explain itself: —

May it please your Hon<sup>rs</sup>

The windows of the Publick meeting House & School house in the Town of Groton are very much broken and it is not in the power of the Selectmen to purchase a Box of Glass Unless it be from the Board of Warr, who have been so obliging as to inform me they would Sell a Box for that purpose by your Hon<sup>rs</sup> permission Therefore [I] earnestly request an order for that purpose which will much oblige the Town & your

Powder-Mill at Pepperell

The following letters, written during the Revolution by the Honorable James Prescott, of Groton, are found among the Massachusetts Archives at the State House, and have some local interest. At that period Mr. Prescott was a prominent character in the affairs of the town, and, whatever may have been his accomplishments in the way of spelling, he exerted a wide influence in all public matters. He filled many important offices; and at the beginning of the Revolution he was a member of the Provincial Congress and of the Board of War. His dwelling stood on the knoll, perhaps half a mile southeast of the village, on the Boston road, near the house of the late Phineas Gilman Prescott. For site of the powder-house, mentioned below, see page 231.

240 Groton during the Revolution

This powder-mill was situated near the west end of the upper bridge over the Nashua River in the village of East Pepperell. It stood close to the present site of the brick counting-house of the paper-mills, and the water-power was afterward used for a fulling-mill. The drying-house was on the opposite side of the road. Ephraim Lawrence, who signs the statement, was a physician at Pepperell, and probably in charge of the mill. He was a son of Deacon Peleg and Ruth Lawrence; and at the time of his death he left a large family of children, among whom was the late Dr. Ebenezer Lawrence, of Hampton, New Hampshire.

When the Revolution broke out, Dr. Oliver Prescott, — the younger brother of James, who wrote the preceding letters, and of William, the hero of Bunker Hill, — was perhaps the most noted as well as the most influential man in Groton. He was a graduate of Harvard College in the class of 1750, and a member of various scientific societies. The following suggestion made by him to the Committee of Safety is found in Peter Force's "American Archives," fourth series (II. 385): —

Groton, April 24, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I think if an order should pass for the establishment of a Town Guard, to be kept in a prudent manner, in every Town in this Province, it would have a great tendency to deter and detect villains and their accomplices. The passes that people bring this way are generally without date, or assignment to any person or place, so that a man may pass to Africa with the same order. Pardon my freedom, and allow me to subscribe, gentlemen, your most obedient, very humble servant,

OLIVER PRESCOTT.

To the Committee of Safety.

Another letter written by Dr. Prescott, who at this time was a Brigadier General, is preserved among the Shattuck Manuscripts of the New England Historic, Genealogical Society. It gives some interesting facts concerning the Middlesex militia, and is as follows: —

Daniel Farnsworth

The following notice taken from "The Continental Journal, and Weekly Advertiser" (Boston), January 2, 1777, shows the want of postal facilities which existed during the Revolutionary period. At that time there were but few post-offices in New England, and letters for Groton were sent first to the Boston Office, and afterward forwarded through private channels. This explains the statement that "letters are uncertain."

To Mr. DANIEL FARNSWORTH, of Groton, in the state of Massachusetts-Bay :

SIR,

THE privateer you are concerned in has taken and sent a prize to a safe port. — I take this method to acquaint you of it, as letters are uncertain. — When I see you shall be able to give a more particular account about it.

From your friend and humble servant,

D. R.

Providence, December 25, 1776.

Dr. Samuel Gelston

Before the Revolutionary period Dr. Samuel Gelston was a well-known physician in the Province of Massachusetts. At one time, in connection with Dr. John Warren, he had a hospital at the barracks in Castle William, Boston Harbor, for the treatment of patients who had been inoculated for small-pox. An advertisement, setting forth the general details of the establishment, appears in "The Boston Post-Boy & Advertiser," March 5, 1764. At another time he lived at Nantucket, having previously managed a small-pox hospital on Martha's Vineyard. In the early part of the Revolutionary War he was a tory of a pronounced type, and both by word and deed incurred the bitter hatred of the patriots. The feeling was so strong that the attention of the General Court, then sitting at Watertown, was called to his case, and by their order he was arrested at Falmouth. On January 17, 1776, the Council passed a Resolution concerning Dr. Gelston as a person "unfriendly to the Liberties of this Country," and putting him under bonds of one thousand Pounds for his future behavior and appearance before the Court, whenever wanted; but the House of Representatives non-concurred, and passed another Resolution much more stringent. Six days later it is recorded in the printed Journal of January 23: —

Joseph Palmer, Esq; brought down the Resolve of the House for confining Doct. Gelston, with the following Vote of Council thereon, viz.

In Council, January 22d, 1776.

Read and concurr'd, and the Board having reconsiderd their former Vote, passed the following Resolve, viz.

That the said Samuel Gelston, be sent to the Town of Groton in the County of Middlesex, and that he give Bond with two good Sureties to the Treasurer of this Colony in the Penal Sum of One Thousand Pounds, the Condition whereof shall be, that he the said

Samuel will not depart out of the Limits of the said Town of Groton, until the further Order of this Court, and that he will not in any wise assist or correspond with any of the Enemies of this Country, and that he will be of good and peaceable Behaviour towards all Persons who are friendly to American Liberty, and that he will at any Time appear and answer to any Complaint which may be made against him, when he shall be thereto required by Order of this Court, and that he will abide their Order thereon ;

And on failure of the said Samuel's giving Bond as aforesaid, Resolved, That he be committed to the Goal in Newbury Port, until the further Order of this Court.

Sent down for Concurrence.

Read and non-concurred, and the House adhere to their own Vote. (Pages 194, 195.)

From the tenor of the Resolve passed by the House, it is evident that that body thought that Dr. Gelston should not have his freedom under any contingency, and that he should be securely guarded in jail. While the Council and the House were at variance, Dr. Gelston escaped from the messenger of the General Court and ran off, though he was subsequently retaken at Newport, Rhode Island, and brought back to Watertown. John Brown, another tory, who was bribed to aid Gelston in this attempt, was captured at the same time with him; and they both were brought back together. After this episode the two legislative bodies soon came to an agreement, when they ordered the men to be confined in some jail, until they should be set free by the Council, though no particular jail was specified.

At the time of his capture Brown had in his possession about ten pounds of India tea, which was ordered by the General Court to be burned publicly, at five o'clock in the afternoon of Saturday, February 3. "The Boston-Gazette, and Country Journal" (Watertown), February 5, 1776, gives the following account of the affair : —

Saturday last was burnt in this town, pursuant to an order of the General Court, by the door-keeper, a quantity of Bohea Tea, taken from one John Brown, a person who for Fifty Dollars, rescued and convey'd away, from the custody of the Court's Messenger, Dr. Samuel Gelston, who had been apprehended by the Court, for supplying the Enemy with Provisions ; he was retaken with the said Brown at Rhode-Island and bro't back to this Town, where they now are under close Guard.

246 Groton during the Revolution

For an account of the Gelston Family, see " The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record " (II. 131-138) for July, 1871.

There is in the library of the Massachusetts Historical Society a small hand-bill, which reads as follows : —

ADVERTISEMENT.

Watertown, January 26, 1776.

RAN AWAY from the custody of the Messenger of the General Court, a certain Dr. Samuel Gelston, belonging to Nantucket, a short well set man ; had on when he went away a reddish Sheepskin coat, dress'd with the wool inside, and a scarlet waistcoat ; he was apprehended as an enemy to this country, 'tis suppos'd he will attempt escaping to the enemy, by the way of Nantucket, Rhode-Island, or New-York.-----Whoever will take up said Gelston and deliver him to the messenger of the House of Representatives, shall be well rewarded for his time and expence.

Capt. John Williams

A notice, signed by Colonel Rufus Putnam, is printed in " The Continental Journal, and Weekly Advertiser " (Boston), May 29, 1777, which gives a list of the officers then engaged in recruiting for his regiment. Among the names there mentioned is that of John Williams, of Groton, who soon afterward was commissioned as a captain in the army, and later became an original member of the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinnati. In the Memorials of that association (Boston, 1890), edited by James McKellar Bugbee, the following sketch of him, as well as of his son, John, Jr., is given: —

John Williams.

He was the son of John, Jr., and Elizabeth (Cutter) Williams; b. Groton, Mass., 4 July, 1746; d. there 1 July, 1822. He was an ensign in Prescott's reg. at Bunker Hill; 1st lieut. in 1776; com. capt. 7 July, 1777, in the 12th reg., and was in Vose's (1st) reg. from 1781 to its disbandment, 3 Nov. 1783. He m. Molly Everett, and had twelve children, five of whom d. young.

JOHN WILLIAMS.

Eldest son of Capt. John, whom he succ. in 1826; b. Groton, Mass., 1 April, 1774; d. in Dover, Mass., leaving a widow, Sally B., who was æ. 77 in 1859. (Pages 516, 517.)

According to an advertisement in the same newspaper, three weeks later (June 19), the town of Groton was to receive ninety-eight bushels of salt out of the public stores belonging to the State.

William Nutting's Diary

William Nutting was a son of Lieutenant William and Jane (Boynton) Nutting, and was born at Groton, on July 10, 1752. He was a corporal in Captain Lawrence's company of minute-men that marched from Groton on April 19, after the Lexington alarm. A large part of his Diary is printed in the Groton Historical Series (III. 383-399). To a casual reader the following memoranda may seem trivial and unimportant; but any fact connected with the events of the Revolutionary period has some interest.

Moses Child

A few years ago Samuel Mitchell Child, Esq., a lawyer of Boston, placed in my hands for examination certain old papers which once belonged to his great-great-grandfather, Moses Child, of Groton.

The earliest of these papers is dated at Watertown, March 31, 1763, and signed by John Remington, Collector of the Duties of Excise, giving to Mr. Child permission "to sell Rum, and other Distilled Spirits and Wine." Another paper is dated at Cambridge, May, 1774, and informs the Selectmen of the town that Messrs. John Sawtell, Moses Child, and George Peirce were licensed as Innholders during the previous year, and also that Jonathan Clark Lewis, Jonas Cutler, and William Swan were licensed as Retailers for the same period; and then notifies the Selectmen that the time for renewing the licenses would be on Tuesday, September 13. Among these old papers is Mr. Child's account-book, bearing date June 5, 1761, which was in use for seven years; and from the numerous charges to his customers for rum, brandy, and flip, it would seem as if he was a wholesale dealer in liquors rather than a retailer. In one place he writes: "March ye 7 [1773?] Capt Shattuck and Isaac Bowers begun to Take the Newspapers;" and later, in another place, he says: "Capt Asa Lawrance paid for three months for the Nues papers £0:3:4:0." Did he furnish his neighbors with their weekly papers as well as with their liquid stimulants?

Moses Child was the second son of Isaac and Anna (Adams) Child, and born at Watertown, on April 6, 1731. He was married to Sarah Stiles, of Lunenburg; and they settled at Groton, where their eight children were born. During the French and Indian War he held a commission as Ensign, which is now in the possession of the Maine Historical Society at Portland, according to Blood's "History of Temple," New Hampshire (page 211). In November, 1775, he was one of two persons, commissioned by General Washington, and sent at the public expense to Nova Scotia, "to inquire into the state of that Colony, the disposition of the inhabitants towards the American cause, and the condition of the fortifications, dock yards, the quantity of the warlike stores, and the number of soldiers, sailors and ships of war there; and to transmit the earliest intelligence to Gen. Washington." His commission for this service is printed in full in the "Genealogy of the Child, Childs and Childe Families" (page 546).

Mr. Child served also as an officer in the Revolution, and was present at Burgoyne's surrender. A grant of land lying within the District of Maine was made to him and others for their military services. The tract was then called Tyngstown, in honor of Capt. James Tyng, but is now known as Wilton, and lies in Franklin County, Maine. Among these Child manuscripts is a list of the original proprietors of the township, and other papers relating to the laying out of that settlement.

About the year 1790 Mr. Child removed to Temple, New Hampshire, where he lived until his death, which took place on February 8, 1793. His widow survived him for a quarter of a century, and died on June 3, 1818.

The following copies are made from manuscripts among these papers: —

Capt. Abraham Childs

The following notice of an aged citizen appeared in the "Columbian Centinel," January 11, 1834. During the last century Captain Childs built and occupied the house in Groton where the late Charles Woolley in recent years lived for so long a time, situated on School Street, near Hollis Street. He bought the parcel of land of Jephtha Richardson, a tavern-keeper and son of Converse Richardson, a blacksmith, who before this time had a shop on it, nearly opposite to the site of the late Nathaniel Livermore's house. Captain Childs's eldest son, David, married Mrs. Susanna (Bentley) Woolley, widow of Captain Charles Woolley (b. 1768, d. 1802), as her second husband.

The article was written by George Fowle, a schoolmaster of Boston, from facts furnished by Mr. Woolley. Such sketches of Revolutionary characters are always of value, inasmuch as they have an interest for the inhabitants as well as for the local historian. Captain Childs's wife was Rebecca Stowell, of Waltham, who died on November 14, 1830. He spelled his surname with a final "s," but the children dropped it.

The following very interesting sketch of one of our Revolutionary heroes, from a correspondent, will be read with great interest. Such characters add a degree of romance to the history of the Revolution.

Biographical Sketch of Capt. Abraham Child.

Died, at Groton, (Mass) on Friday, the 3d inst., after a short indisposition, Capt. ABRAHAM CHILD, aged 92. The remnant of our revolutionary worthies is fast disappearing, and it is useful to collect their testimony of the 'heroic age' of our fathers, as each assists in bringing the struggle more home to our bosoms. The subject of this sketch was born at Waltham, August 12th, 1741. The estate on which he was born, has been in the possession of the same family for more than a century—a fact worthy of notice, as evincing the sound judgment and untiring industry, which are peculiar traits of their character.

At the age of fifteen, Abraham was apprenticed to a blacksmith, with whom he continued 2 years; when, no longer controlling his patriotic ardor, he joined the company of Capt. William Jones, of Medford, in the regiment of Col. Saltonstall, of Haverhill, and marched to join the army under General Amherst, appointed to invade Canada. After aiding in the captures of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, and being engaged in several skirmishes, he wintered with the army at Crown Point, 1760. Marching in the spring upon Montreal, they were compelled, after a severe action at Silsery, to fall back upon Quebec; from whence, finally concentrating their forces under Amherst, upon Montreal, the reduction of Canada was effected, and our soldier enabled to resume his trade, at which he continued until 1762, when he again entered the service under Capt. William Baldwin, of Chelmsford, of Col. Hoar's regiment, marched to Boston, took shipping to Halifax, and thence sailed to aid in the reduction of some French posts in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Upon the accomplishment of which, returning to Halifax, he there spent the winter, working at his trade. At the peace of '63, he returned home. In 1767, he married one, whose subsequent conduct proved her a fit partner for a "Son of Liberty." In 1774, when the Provincial Congress deemed it necessary to organize more thoroughly a military force, he was appointed Lieutenant of Capt. Abijah Child's company of 'Minute Men.' In the following year he warmly engaged in the pursuit of the English at the battle of Lexington. Then entering the States' service for 8 months, as Lieutenant of Captain J. Williams's company, in Col. Baldwin's regiment, he assisted in proving "Yankee Cowardice" upon Bunker's Hill. At the expiration of his time he enlisted for one year. After the evacuation of Boston, he marched to New York, and suffered at the defeat of Long Island, in the summer of '76. Retreating with the main army through the Jerseys, into Pennsylvania, he was one of that determined band, which, headed by Washington, resolved to turn the current of success, or perish ere their country's chains were rivetted. Victory at Trenton crowning the endeavor, our soldier returned home with the rank of Captain in Colonel Western's regiment. In 1777 he took command of 300 men, whom he had assisted in recruiting, and joined General Gates in time to aid at the capture of Burgoyne. Returning to the main army, he passed the winter at Valley Forge, where he endured hardships, compared with which, his former sufferings were pleasures. But the following summer, as he stated, he thoroughly warmed himself at Monmouth. Water not being attainable, his soldiers stove in a hogshead of brandy, and madly assuaged their overpowering thirst, without more effect arising therefrom than if it had been so much water.

In 1779 he was appointed to the command of a company of Light Infantry, under Major William Hull; and on the 15th of July, as senior Captain of the Infantry, he headed the assault at the storming of Stoney Point. General Wayne, to prevent the possibility of early discovery, ordered the muskets to be unloaded, and the flints withdrawn. Advancing thus, in solid columns to the assault, they suddenly displayed [deployed] to the right and left, sprang boldly to the walls, under a murderous fire of grape and musketry from the now aroused Britons, and gained the ramparts with the exulting shout of "Hurrah! the fort is ours!" We have the authority of the late General Hull, to state, that the first man who gained the rampart and raised the cry of victory, was our enthusiastic Captain. In the act of parrying a thrust from a British officer, Captain Child received a slight wound in the hand, which was the only injury he received through all his campaigns.

Soon after this, domestic affairs imperiously calling for his presence, he bade a final adieu to the army. His wife, meanwhile, had nobly proved herself the virtuous and patriotic matron. She had almost, through her own exertions, (her husband's pay being almost nominal,) clothed and maintained her children comfortably — had educated them as well as the times admitted, (several of them in after years taught our country schools,) and indeed, to the time of her death, in 1831, proved herself worthy of those times of closest trial. After residing several years in Wendall, he removed in 1795, to Groton, Mass. In 1818 he applied for, and received, the half-pay pension. During the remainder of his eventful life, beloved and respected, he calmly pursued his course, retaining all his faculties and strength to the last, and finally expired —

“Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
“About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.”

An Exception

The record of Groton men who enlisted during the Revolution was highly creditable to the town, and there is no reason why the exceptions should be kept back. Her soldiers served throughout the war with honor and distinction; and the following item from "The Independent Chronicle. And the Universal Advertiser" (Boston), May 22, 1777, does not materially affect their good name and reputation :—

At a General Court Martial, held in this Town last Week, by Order of General Heath, Lieut. Col. Thomas Farrington, of Groton, State of Massachusetts, being found guilty of receiving and passing counterfeit Money, knowing it to be such, was unanimously adjudged to be discharged from the Army, and rendered incapable of acting any more as an Officer in the Continental Service. He was committed to Goal on Monday last, to be dealt with by the Civil Law, according to his atrocious Crime.

Farrington, I fear, was a man of bad repute ; and the following declaration, found in "The Boston-Gazette, and Country Journal," July 7, 1777, does not add to his character :—

Boston, July 5, 1777.

I THOMAS FARRINGTON, of Groton, in the County of Middlesex, and State of the Massachusetts-Bay, in New-England, Esquire, of lawful age, testify and declare, That whereas it hath been publicly, and by many persons reported, that William Smith, of Fish-Kills, in the State of New-York, Esquire, lately employed in the Continental service as an engineer, hath been concerned, either in counterfeiting, altering, or passing bills in imitation of bills of the Continental currency, and that I know him to be, in some way or other, concerned as aforesaid. I hereby publish to the world, that I never knew the said William Smith concerned either in counterfeiting, altering, or passing any such bills, or any other, but such as he might lawfully pass to any person whatsoever ; and that I never had any reason to think that he hath been concerned in any such mal-practices, either directly or indirectly : And I further declare, that I cannot account for the forementioned report, concerning said Smith's being any way concerned with counterfeit money than this, viz. I was once in company with said Smith at a public house in Medford, in the County of Middlesex aforesaid, and when the said Smith there opened his pocket-book to pay his reckoning, I thought I saw one or more bills therein of the Continental currency, which at the distance I stood from him appeared to me to have a pale complexion, which made me suspect them to be counterfeits; but I have no reason to think that the said Smith knew them to be so, or that the said Smith was ever concerned either directly or indirectly, in counterfeiting, altering or passing any bill or bills in imitation of any bill or bills of public credit whatsoever, as before by me declared.

Absentees

NOTICE is hereby given, that on Monday the 27th day of March next, at 1 o'clock afternoon, will be leased at public auction, by the committee of safety, &c. for the town of Groton, to the highest bidder, for one year, from the 1st day of April next, all the real estate of Mr. — Martin, an absentee, lying in the said town of Groton; the vendu to be at the dwelling house on the premises.

Groton, Feb. 23d, 1780.

"The Boston Gazette, and the Country Journal," February 28, 1780.

This farm is advertised again in the same newspaper of February 26, 1781, to be leased for one year; and Martin's Christian name is then given as William.

Charles Ward Apthorp, of New York, was another absentee, who owned real estate in Groton, which is advertised in the same journal of December 24, 1781. It is described as "A messuage and tract of land situate in Groton, in said [Middlesex] county, containing about one hundred and seven acres, with the houses, barns, and buildings thereon, being bounded southwesterly on Samuel Farwell's land, northerly on land of Matthias Farnsworth, easterly on Little Pond, southerly by Common Land."

Outlaws

The following advertisements are found in "The Independent Chronicle, and the Universal Advertiser" (Boston), February 13, 1783. The outlawry which they declare is not to be taken in a literal sense, but indicates only a severe penalty. Thomas Sackville Tufton was a trader, who died probably in the winter of 1787-8, as letters of administration were taken out on his estate, February 6, 1788.

Outlawry.

Pursuant to a Writ of Scire facias Utlagatum, bearing Test the 20th Day of January, A.D. 1783, to me directed — I hereby give Notice, unto THOMAS SACVILLE TUFTON, of Groton, in the County of Middlesex, Trader, That unless he appear before the Supreme Judicial Court, next to be holden at Concord, within and for the County of Middlesex, on the 2d Tuesday of April next, and maketh Answer to the several Charges specified in three Indictments of a Grand Jury, in the Supreme Judicial Court, of uttering and passing sundry counterfeit Bills and Notes, of the Denomination of Fifty Dollars, and of the Tenor and fabricated in Imitation of the good, lawful and current Bills of Credit of the United States of America, established by the Congress of the said United States of the same Denomination, knowing the said Bills to be counterfeit; and also of having in Possession sundry other counterfeit Bills of the same Denomina-

Capt. William Scott

On the third page of "The Boston Gazette, and the Country Journal," July 16, 1792, is printed a long extract from "a Philadelphia paper of July 2," giving an account of a severe hurricane that swept over the eastern part of Pennsylvania on July 1. The storm did much damage in Philadelphia and its neighborhood, but fortunately there was no great loss of life. At the end of the extract the following episode is given, with some editorial comment of the Gazette within brackets, as here printed: —

Since writing the above account, we further learn, that a boat from this city to the Jersey shore was overset within fifty rods of Samuel Cowper's wharff. There were in the boat Captain Scott, Mr. Blake, his wife and four small children, a young woman, and Mr. Betis, in all nine persons, none of whom could swim but Capt. Scott.

The Captain, by the most astonishing and praise-worthy exertions, was able, providentially, to save them all. He swam ashore with one child hanging round his neck, and one to each arm; and he returned to the boat amidst the boisterous waves raging in a furious and frightful manner, and brought the others, who had with much difficulty held by the boat, safe to the land.

For the honor of Captain Scott, an old and valiant Soldier, a Son of Massachusetts, this circumstance should be handed down to posterity.

Those who revere the virtues of the benevolent HOWARD must ever remember, with veneration, those successful exertions of Captain SCOTT.

[The above mentioned hero, is Capt. WM. SCOTT, of Groton, in this Commonwealth; and an invalid officer of the United States.—At the commencement of the late war in the Battle on Bunker's Hill, he received several wounds, was taken prisoner, and confined in goal in this town, when in possession of the British — and suffered much maltreatment.]

The "Columbian Centinel" (Boston), July 14, 1792, also mentions the same incident, but does not give so many particulars.

William Scott was a son of John and Mary (Chamberlin) Scott, of Groton, where he was born on July 1, 1742. It will be noticed that the act of heroism was performed on his own birthday,—on the day when he was fifty years old,—and this fact may have incited him to make special exertions. During the Revolutionary War he saw much military service, and at one time was in the navy. For a sketch of his life, see Dr. Albert Smith's "History of Peterborough," New Hampshire (page 248 of the second Part), where the account of his parentage conflicts with the statement here given. His death took place at Litchfield, New York, on September 19, 1796, at the age of 54 years.

Groton Soldiers living in Maine

The following Groton soldiers are mentioned in a list of "Names of Soldiers of the American Revolution who applied for State Bounty under Resolves of March 17, 1835, March 24, 1836, and March 20, 1838, as appears of record in Land Office," compiled by Charles J. House (Augusta, 1893).

The abbreviations may be explained thus: "e" for place of residence at time of enlistment, "d" for died, "w" for widow, and "m" for married. The name of a town following that of a soldier or his widow shows the place of residence at the time when the application was made.

Sons of the Revolution

Within a few years three persons have died, whose fathers were natives of Groton and also soldiers during the American Revolution, namely: Andrew Johnson Parker (youngest child of Joshua Parker), who died at Charlestown, on December 31, 1894; the Reverend Thomas Treadwell Stone, D.D. (youngest son of Deacon Solomon Stone), at Bolton, on November 13, 1895, and at the time of his death the oldest alumnus of Bow-doin College; and Luther Lewis Tarbell (son of William Tarbell, by his second wife), at Marlboro, on July 10, 1896. For a notice of Tarbell's father, see page 284.

Revolutionary Pensioners

In the year 1841 "A Census of Pensioners for Revolutionary or Military Services" was published under the direction of the United States Government, which gave the names, ages, and places of residence of all pensioners then living, as well as the names of heads of families with whom they were residing. The list includes presumably all the surviving Revolutionary soldiers at that period; and among them are the names of ten Groton men, as follows:—

Names.	Ages.	With whom living.
Abel Prescott.	80	Abel Prescott.
William Prescott.	72	Merrick Lewis.
Joshua Parker.	76	Joshua Parker.
William Tarbell.	76	William Tarbell.
Jacob Nutting.	93	Jacob Nutting.
Isaac Patch.	78	Isaac Patch.
Joseph Sawtell, 2d.	76	Joseph Sawtell, 2d.
David Lakin.	89	David Lakin.
Amos Farnsworth.	86	Amos Farnsworth.
Stephen Pingrey.	82	John Pingrey.

Abel Prescott was the second son of Jonas and Rebecca (Bulkley) Prescott and was born at Groton, on December 12 1759. He was married to Hannah Spalding, of Ashburnham; and among his children were Phinehas Gilman Prescott and Charles Prescott. He died on September 18, 1841, and his widow on August 17, 1854.

William Prescott was the youngest son of the Honorable James and Susanna (Lawrence) Prescott, and born at Groton, on September 5, 1768. At a Fourth of July celebration he was severely wounded in the hand by the premature discharge of a cannon, and in consequence of the injury he received a pension from the United States Government. For many years after the death of his father he lived in the family of Major James Lewis, and after Major Lewis's death in the family of Merrick Lewis, the youngest brother of James. Mr. Prescott died at Groton, on August 31, 1843. He was a nephew of Colonel William Prescott who commanded the American forces at the Battle of Bunker Hill, and a brother of Benjamin who fell in that fight.

Joshua Parker was a son of Ephraim and Azubah (Farnsworth) Parker, and was born at Groton, on May 26, 1764. He was in the army near the end of the War, and he died on September 15, 1843. For a brief account of the family, see Groton Historical Series (II. 321).

William Tarbell was the second son of Benjamin and Azubah (Farnsworth) Tarbell, and was born at Groton, on October 19, 1764. He was married, on April 8, 1788, to Polly Simonds, of Groton; secondly, on April 24, 1823, to Susan Blood, of Groton; and, thirdly, on May 13, 1840, to Mrs. Sarah (Wetherbee) Nutting, of Townsend. Mr. Tarbell's mother died on March 14, 1838, at the age of 97 years, 8 months, and 19 days, the oldest person in town at that time; and he died on August 3, 1851, aged 86 years, 9 months, and 16 days. The date of his birth is taken from the family Bible, and differs by a few days from that given in the town records. In the summer of 1783 Mr. Tarbell made a rude drawing of the encampment at New Windsor, just above West Point, where he was then serving. It represents the barracks and other features of the camp, and is now in the possession of his son's widow. This is the same drawing incorrectly referred to on page 284 as a view of the ground at Valley Forge.

Jacob Nutting, a son of Isaac and Lydia (Nutting) Nutting, was born at Groton, on January 23, 1747, and died on May 14, 1841.

Isaac Patch was the second son of Isaac and Elizabeth (Avery) Patch, and born at Westford in the year 1762. He was married in 1786 to Phebe, youngest child of Reuben and Susanna (Chandler) Fletcher of that town; and they had eight children, of whom the youngest, Sophronia, was the wife of the late Moses Titus, of Ayer. Mr. Patch died at Groton, on October 21, 1841, aged 79 years; and his widow on January 9, 1843, also aged 79 years.

Joseph Sawtell, 2d, was the second son of Joseph and Lydia (Jenkins) Sawtell, and was born at Groton, on May 8, 1764. He was married, on February 22, 1788, to Hannah, youngest daughter of Ebenezer and Mary Kemp. For many years he was sexton of the town; and he died on March 21, 1842. Another Joseph, the father of the late Ephraim Sawtell, was living in the year 1840, when this list of pensioners was made.

David Lakin was the youngest child of John and Lydia (Parker) Lakin, and was born at Groton, on October 10, 1753. He died on March 3, 1846, at which time he was the oldest person in town.

Amos Farnsworth was the eldest son of Amos and Lydia (Longley) Farnsworth, and was born at Groton, on April 28, 1754. After the Lexington alarm, on April 19, 1775, he marched to Cambridge in Captain Henry Farwell's company of minute-men. At the time of his death, which took place on October 29, 1847, he was the oldest person in town.

Stephen Pingrey was the oldest son of Stephen and Anna (Jewett) Pingrey, and was born at Rowley, on June 3, 1759. After the death of his second wife, which took place at Franconia, New Hampshire, on June 12, 1838, in order to live with his youngest son John, he came to Groton, where he died on May 8, 1844.

Many years ago I obtained the following facts from Elijah Clark, of Newton, who had had some experience as a Revolutionary pension-agent.

264 Groton during the Revolution

Mrs. Olive Studley died at Groton, on March 2, 1845, aged 83 years. She was the widow of Consider Studley, who during the Revolution had served as a non-commissioned officer from Wrentham. They were married at Franklin in 1785; and at the time of her death she left three children, namely: Mrs. Olive Rugg, wife of Joseph Rugg, of Groton; Oliver Studley; and Sarah Mann Studley. Her husband died at Lancaster, on December 28, 1832; and in consequence of his military services she received from the United States Government an annual pension of forty-four dollars.

Jonathan Prentiss, a native of Groton, living in Townsend, was in the military service of his country during the years 1778 and 1779. At one time he was a member of Captain Kimball's company, Colonel Sproat's regiment, and stationed at Nantasket.

Samuel Gragg, a native of Groton, and a soldier of the Revolution, was an uncle of the Reverend William Gragg, who graduated at Harvard College in the Class of 1820; and his wife's name was Rachel Blood.

Groton, a Shire Town during the Revolution

Owing to the disturbances of the War, an Act was passed by the Legislature, on February 6, 1776, removing the November term of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace and Court of Common Pleas from Charlestown to Groton. Two years later, on September 23, 1778, this November term was transferred to Cambridge, to take the place of the May term, which in turn was brought to Groton, where it remained until June, 1787. The sessions of the Court were held in the First Parish Meeting-house; and the Court was sitting there during the famous dark day of May 19, 1780, when candles had to be used.

The following notice adjourning the Court of Common Pleas, appointed to be held at Groton, appears in "The Boston Gazette, and the Country Journal," May 12, 1783, and is signed by three Justices of that Court. It is impossible now to learn the circumstances under which the adjournment took place, but they may have been similar to those mentioned in a Resolve, here reprinted immediately after the advertisement from the newspaper. On the docket at East Cambridge no explanation is given, but under date of May 20, 1783, it is there recorded that the Court, by proclamation of John Tyng and James Prescott, Esquires, two of the Justices, was adjourned to the first Tuesday of June, which fell that year on the third day of the month.

WHEREAS some Circumstances that must happen will render it necessary that the Court of Common Pleas, by Law appointed to be holden at Groton, within and for the County of Middlesex, on the 3d Tuesday of May Inst. should be adjourned to some future Day: All Persons concerned are to take Notice, that the same Court will be adjourned to the first Tuesday in June next, then to proceed to Business Jurors Parties and Witnesses will govern themselves accordingly.

By Order of Three of the Justices of the same Court.

N. B. As the Court of Common Pleas will adjourn as above, it is probable that the Court of General Sessions of the Peace will be adjourned in like Manner.

266 Groton during the Revolution

The following Resolution was passed by the General Court on May 2, 1787, and is found in the volume of "Resolves" (page 280), where the chapter is numbered XXXI.

Resolve adjourning the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, and Court of Common Pleas in the County of Middlesex, to the fourth Tuesday in May inst. May 2, 1787.

Whereas by reason of the sitting of the Supreme Judicial Court, at Concord, on the second Tuesday of May instant, the sitting of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, and Court of Common Pleas, at Groton, on the Tuesday following, may be attended with inconveniences.

Resolved, That the said Court of General Sessions of the Peace, and Court of Common Pleas, by law to be holden at Groton, within and for the county of Middlesex, on the third Tuesday of May instant, shall be holden at Groton aforesaid, on the fourth Tuesday of the same month, and that all writs, processes and recognizances, returnable to, and all appeals made to the said Court of General Sessions of the Peace, and Court of Common Pleas, appointed by law to be holden at Groton; and all matters, causes and things, that have day or that might have had day, been moved or done at, in, or by the said Courts, at the time so appointed for holding the same, shall be returnable to, and may be entered, prosecuted, had, moved and done at, in, and by the said Courts, at the time herein appointed for holding the same. And the Secretary is hereby directed, to publish this resolve, in the two next Adams and Nourse's, Hall's, and Charlestown papers.

It is highly probable that the Shays Rebellion, which broke out in the summer of 1786, had some connection with the removal of these sessions from Groton. The uprising in Middlesex County was confined exclusively to this neighborhood, and the insurgents always felt a bitter spite against the Court of Common Pleas, which they had tried so hard to abolish. The action of the Legislature in making the change seems to have been in part retributive.

During the period when the Courts were held here, Groton was a town much more important relatively, both in size and influence, than it is at the present time. According to the National census of 1790, the first one taken, it was then the second town in population in Middlesex County, Cambridge alone having more inhabitants. In that year Groton had 322 families, numbering 1,840 persons ; and Cambridge, 355 families, numbering 2,115 persons, while Lowell had no existence. Charlestown had a population of 1,583 ; and Newton, 1,360. Reading, with 341 families (19 more than Groton), numbered 1,802 persons (38 less than Groton). Woburn then had a population of 1,727 ; Framingham, 1,598 ; Marlborough, 1,554 ; and Waltham, 882. Pepperell contained 1,132 inhabitants ; Shirley, 677 ; Westford, 1,229 ; and Littleton, 854.

Prescott, at that time a Brigadier-General, but it does not appear that he ever took his seat with the Board. On November 13, the records state that two of the members, whose names are given, had declined, and their places were at once filled; and on November 16 five more resignations were announced, — though no names are mentioned, — and the vacancies then filled. Dr. Prescott was undoubtedly one of the five who declined at this time. Among those chosen at the second election was "Colonel Prescott," who was James, a brother of Oliver. It is a little singular that their Christian names are not given in the records, as both men were so well known. The Journal of the House, October 30, 1776, prints the name of "James Prescott, Esq;" as one of the nine original members chosen at that time, but this appears to be an error. Colonel Prescott attended his first meeting with the Board of War on December 18, — according to the manuscript minutes of the Board.

A Revolutionary Surgeon

Dr. Ebenezer Rockwood was a son of Elisha and Elizabeth (Adams) Rockwood, and born at Groton on August 13, 1746. He graduated at Harvard College in the Class of 1773, and immediately afterward studied medicine, though there was then no institution in New England that conferred the degree of M.D. in course. Dr. Rockwood served for a time in the army during the early part of the Revolution. In a list of officers in Colonel Ebenezer Francis's Regiment, stationed on Dorchester Heights, November 4, 1776, — published in the "Maine Historical and Genealogical Recorder" (V. 3) for July, 1888, — he appears as Surgeon's Mate. On June 10, 1779, he was married to Mary, daughter of the Reverend Daniel and Hannah (Emerson) Emerson, of Hollis, New Hampshire; and they had nine children. In the year 1779 he received and accepted an invitation, signed by nearly all the voters of Wilton, New Hampshire, to settle in that town as a physician; and he probably went there during the next spring, as a letter of dismissal was given to him by the church in Groton, on March 5, 1780. Among his children was Ebenezer, Jr., who graduated at Harvard College in the Class of 1802, a classmate and friend of the Honorable Samuel Hoar, whose son, the late Ebenezer Rockwood Hoar, was named for him.

An Interesting Map

There is in the library of the Massachusetts Historical Society a map entitled "The Seat of War, in New England, by an American Volunteer, with the Marches of the Several Corps sent by the Colonies towards Boston, with the Attack on Bunkers-Hill." It was made soon after the Battle, and includes the eastern half of Massachusetts, nearly all of Rhode Island, the southern part of New Hampshire, and the eastern border of Connecticut. It gives the various townships of the region as well as the main thoroughfares converging at Boston, and in a rude way it shows troops coming from the several colonies on their march to the seat of war. The "Road from Stephens Fort and Crown Pt." which passes through the village of Groton, is represented on the map. Stephen's Fort was situated in Charlestown on the Connecticut River. "Rangers from New Hampshire" are shown along this route; and an "Incampment" is represented at Worcester, with "New York Grenadiers," "Virginian Horse," etc., in the neighborhood marching toward Cambridge. Groton Gore in New Hampshire is also represented, and appears under the name of Groton.

assembled on March 6th, 1770.*

Voted Unanimously,

THAT we the Inhabitants of the Town of Groton, do most heartily approve of the Non-importation Agreement of the Merchants, and that we will not (knowingly) directly or indirectly, purchase any Goods of any Person that Imports the same, or that trades with an Importer, contrary to the Agreement of the Merchants. At the same Meeting chose a Committee to inspect the Buyers and Sellers of Goods within the said Town, and to caution them against counteracting the Intent and Meaning of the Non-Importation Agreement, as they would avoid the Odium and Resentment of the Inhabitants of said Town.

Thomas Sackville Tufton

Thomas Sackville Tufton was a trader in Groton during the Revolutionary period. According to a work on Captain John Mason, published by the Prince Society (Boston, 1887), he was the son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Gooding) Tufton, of Boston, and a descendant of John Mason, the famous founder of New Hampshire. He was a great-great-great-great-grandson of Captain John Mason, a great-great-grandson of Robert Tufton, who took the surname of Mason, and a grandson of John Tufton, of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, who dropped the surname of Mason. See page 257.

The town of Mason, New Hampshire, is so named in honor of Captain John.

The Shays Rebellion

Committees from the towns of Groton, Pepperell, Shirley, Townsend, and Ashby met at Groton on June 29, 1786, in order to make preparations for calling a convention to consider matters of public grievance. At this preliminary meeting a committee was appointed to issue a circular letter to the other towns in Middlesex County, inviting them to send delegates to a convention to be holden at Concord. Captain John Nutting, of Pepperell, was chairman of the committee then appointed; and a letter signed by him was sent to the various selectmen throughout the county. The following copy is made from one printed in "The Independent Chronicle: and the Universal Advertiser" (Boston), July 27, 1786:

To the Selectmen of Cambridge.

GENTLEMEN, &c.

WE the Committees chose by the several towns hereafter mentioned, viz. Groton, Pepperell, Shirley, Townsend and Ashby, met at Groton the 29th day of June, 1786, to consult upon matters of public grievances; and after appointing a Chairman for that day, it was thought best to notify all the towns in this county to meet by their Committees, at the house of Capt. Brown, innholder in Concord, on the 23d day of August next, to consult upon matters of public grievances and embarrassments that the people of this Commonwealth labour under, and to find out means of redress, &c.

By order of the Committee,

JOHN NUTTING, Chairman.

GROTON, July 19, 1786.

N. B. It is expected that a Committee from the Convention that is to set in Worcester county, the 15th of August, will attend.

The answer by the town of Cambridge is found in the same newspaper, wherein it is stated that the inhabitants were attached to the present constitution and administration of government, and that they declined to send any committee. At the same meeting, on July 24, it was voted that the selectmen cause the letter and the reply to be printed, which was accordingly done.

272 Groton during the Revolution

A similar answer by the town of Newton to the same letter is found in Francis Jackson's "History of Newton" (pages 211-213).

At the present time it seems incredible that patriotic men by mob rule should have tried to correct political evils which then surely existed. Most of these misguided persons had served in the Revolutionary army, where they left good records; but they were little used to constitutional government. Captain Nutting, the writer of the circular letter, was a man of irreproachable character, and had led a company of minute-men to Cambridge, on the Nineteenth of April. See page 34 of this volume.

Some years ago I bought at public sale in Boston a letter written by Dr. Oliver Prescott, of Groton, which relates to the action of the insurgents in this neighborhood, near the fag-end of the Rebellion. The letter was afterward given to the Massachusetts Historical Society, on October 11, 1888, and is printed in the Proceedings (second series, IV., 158, 159) of that date, as follows: —

The two following letters, written by Dr. Prescott, are found among the Archives at the State House. They tend to show the active part which he always took in public matters affecting the neighborhood :—

GROTON 8th Jan<sup>y</sup> 1787

DEAR SIR,

How is the Spirit of Volunteering in your part of the County? Will your people turn out for the defence of Worcester Court? I Expect Groton and Pepperrell will furnish two Companies of light Infantry; one Company to be under the Command of Capt. Scott, the other Major Farnsworth, who are inlisting men for that purpose; and I am sure General Brooks will not think proper to send marching orders to this Regiment. Thirty men gave in their names last Saturday; and I Expect a number of good men will ride with me, who cannot bear the fatigues of the Journey in any other mode. I turn out to give Energy to the Service, & hope you will do the same. I shall thank you for Recommending my son [Oliver, Jr.] to Gen<sup>l</sup> Brooks in the Surgeon's department, as he has been & still is very alert, and his engaging in the service, induces many others. I hope nothing will be wanting on the part of Government to put an end to the Rebellion.

I most seriously wish some of the leaders of the malcontents in the County of Worcester, might be apprehended before the sitting of the Court. If a Warrant should be made out to Scott & Brown, as was before, they could easily find some resolute, Cunning men who would go in disguise & are perfectly acquainted with the roads, and have no doubt of Success; they would not wish for more than six or Eight men & be happy to make the Tryal. What do you think of the Experiment? The Expense would not be great. I think they would be more likely to be apprehended this week, while engaged in raising their forces; if they find their party too small to oppose Government, they will Secrete themselves. If a few men should go from this part of the County on a trading Voyage, & mix with the people, I think it is highly probable they would Succeed; & if you are of the Same Opinion, wish you would lay the matter before the Governor & Council; & if they approve of it, let a Warrant be sent by Express, no time should be lost, & it is not in my power to be at Boston this week to make the Proposition.

I shall not omit anything in my power for the publick good. — my best regards to y<sup>r</sup> Brother, I am, Sir,

GROTON 3<sup>d</sup> March 1787

SIR

I beg leave to suggest to your Excellency the propriety of having a Company of Volunteers raised, & stationed in this part of the County of Middlesex for a short time, to apprehend such persons as are disqualified from receiving the pardon, as there are many such, & they ought to be secured soon, as the Spring is opening when they will retire to the woods, which is a matter they depend much upon—I suppose a company of 50 or 60 men, including non-commissioned Officers & privates would be sufficient, & if Capt William Scott of Groton & Samson Woods & Jon<sup>a</sup> Bancroft of Pepperell should be appointed for the Commissioned Officers; they would be able to enlist the men immediately from the Towns of Groton & Pepperell, & such as have horses of their own, that upon any particular occasion might be mounted without expence to Government, so that this small company of Infantry would be equal to any service that Government might require — Any delay or relaxation in Government at this time would be extremely hurtfully.

M<sup>r</sup> Brown of this Town is a Regimental Quarter Master & under the direction of the Commissary General might in an easy & cheap manner supply the troops — The reason of my proposing the above persons for Officers, is, their known fidelity, courage & good conduct, as well as having served in the State army, & had commissions, & are likely to give Satisfaction — The bearer, Capt Jo : Savage has for some time past resided in this Town, & can fully inform you of the disposition of the people, and the necessity of such a company.

I have taken the liberty to order George Marsten to be committed to the Boston Goal, as he is not a Citizen of this Commonwealth & no property, but has been very active in the present rebellion, & by his own confession was chosen an Adjutant in Shays's army he was a deserter from the British army, & for more than one year past had residence in the Town of Pepperell —

I have the honor to be with the greatest [Indorsed] Letter from Oliver Prescott — Groton, March 3<sup>d</sup> 1787 —

(Massachusetts Archives, CXC. 405)

By an Act passed on February 14, 1781, the Governor and Council were requested to appoint three of the Justices of the Peace in each County, who should have authority to commit to jail any person dangerous to the State. Dr. Oliver Prescott was one of those for Middlesex County, and in causing the arrest of George Marsten, as mentioned in the last paragraph of the letter, he was acting in this capacity.

At the Centennial Celebration of the Independent Company of Cadets in Boston, on October 19, 1841, the Reverend

276 Groton during the Revolution

Samuel K. Lothrop, D.D., Chaplain of the Corps, delivered an historical address, from which the following extract is taken: —

On the 29th of the same month [November, 1786], Col. [Samuel] Bradford received orders to assemble his company at Groton, to assist the Sheriff of Middlesex in arresting Col. Shattuck, a leader of the discontented in that county. The Cadets left town [Boston] for the purpose, but before the arrival of the entire company, Col. Shattuck had been arrested. The wound, by which he was disabled, — and consequently taken prisoner, is said to have been inflicted by Fortesque Vernon, a member of the Cadets (page 31).

In the account of "Groton during the Shays Rebellion," which appears in Number III. of the first volume of the Groton Historical Series, it is said, on page 8, that Shattuck's wound was given by F. C. Varnum, of Boston. The statement was made on the authority of Lemuel Shattuck, and is found in his "Memorials of the Descendants of William Shattuck" (page 126). By the light of this extract, I have no doubt that the wound was inflicted by Fortesque Vernon, whose surname was generally pronounced Varnon.

The Insurgents

In the year 1835 there was published anonymously at Philadelphia, a work entitled "The Insurgents: An Historical Novel," in two volumes, written by Ralph Ingersoll Lockwood, a lawyer of New York, who died many years ago. It is based on the Shays Rebellion, and the scene is laid mainly in the Connecticut valley. In the second volume is an account of the capture of Job Shattuck, which is given with all the freedom of a novelist's pen.

See page 66 for Shattuck's connection with the Rebellion.

Capt. Henry Farwell

In the account of the Jubilee of Lawrence Academy at Groton, on July 12, 1854, published during the next year, is printed an interesting letter from the Reverend Dr. William Allen, ex-President of Bowdoin College, who in his younger days had taught school in town. He gives many reminiscences of the place in the early part of the century, and describes a visit made at the house of Jonathan Farwell, whose father, Captain Henry Farwell, had commanded a company of minute-men that marched from Groton to Cambridge on April 19, 1775. This veteran soldier was not afraid to show his colors, and had no sympathy with the Shays Rebellion, according to Dr. Allen, who says:—

I was one evening invited to the bountiful table of a neighbor, Mr. Jonathan Farwell, who had as much humor, joined to as much sense as is seldom found in his condition of life. He was usually called Uncle Jock. At his house, I went into his father's room, to see the old gentleman, then nearly eighty years old. He was a small man, but energetic and animated. Although his feet were just in the grave, he was as full of spirit as ever. He fought his battles over again. He told me that in 1745, when twenty-one years old, he was at the capture of Cape Breton. Just thirty years after that event, he was in the battle of Bunker Hill and was shot through the body. He was a man of as much spirit and energy as I ever knew; and he had a proper reverence for law and good government. He related to me that, "In the time of Shays' rebellion, the question was, 'Shall Jock go out and fight them?' I said, 'Yes. I would disinherit a son of mine who would not fight for his country. Had I as much blood as would bear a seventy-four gunship over Grand Monadnoc, I would spill it all in fighting those rebels!'" (Page 61.)

His descendants were 6 children, 37 grand-children, 23 great-grand-children, and one of the fifth generation. He entered the army at the age of 16 years, and was one of the number to guard Burgoyne's troops at Winter Hill ; he afterwards shipped on board a Letter of Marque on a trading voyage in 1782. On his return home in the brig Iris, of Boston, they captured at the mouth of James river, in Virginia, an English brig mounting 16 guns, with about 100 prisoners, among whom were 30 Americans in irons. On the 2d day after the battle, they encountered a storm which drove the American brig and the prize both on shore, and dashed them in pieces, and all was lost except the crews, which were saved by the inhabitants. He next entered the service of his Savior, and remained in his service about 60 years, and as he entered the threshold of eternity, he repeated the following lines :

Died, in Groton, Mass. June 24, Mr. Isaiah Hall, aged 74, a revolutionary soldier and patriot. For many years he had been gradually declining, and devoted the principal part of his time to reading and meditation. The word of God was his principal study and source of comfort, and when too feeble to read himself, nothing afforded him so much satisfaction as to hear its sacred contents often read. His last sickness, though long and lingering, was borne with that calmness and resignation which a firm faith in the religion of Jesus Christ imparts; and the remaining days of his bereaved partner will be consoled by that hope which animated him in his last hours, and made death to him the harbinger of eternal rest. — [Communicated.]

At Groton, on the 12th instant, Capt JAMES LEWIS, aged 74, (formerly of Billerica.) In every situation in which he was placed through a long and active life, he bore an upright and honorable character. He was an officer of the militia during the whole of the revolutionary war; the companion of Buttrick, Davis, and others who composed the valiant little band that resisted a superior British force, at the bridge in Concord, on the memorable 19th of April, 1775. He continued a uniform and firm supporter of those republican principles, for which he so early stood forth, and ever supported the character of an exemplary citizen, tender husband, and kind parent—he lived respected and died lamented.

In Hawley, Mr. Joseph Longley, born in Groton, Mass., Aug. 17, 1744. He was a great grandson to William Longley, who, with a part of his family, were killed at Groton, by the Indians, in 1684 [1694]—grandson to John Longley, who was Captain five years in Canada—and son to Joseph Longley, who was mortally wounded in the battle and defeat of Fort William Henry, 1758. When 16, he was in the French war one year and helped to build the stone barracks at Crown Point, 1760. He was five years in the revolutionary war for Independence. In the first eight months' service, 1775. At Ticonderoga in '76. At the capture of Burgoyne, '77. In December following, while in the van of 100 volunteers, under Maj. Hull, pursuing a foraging party, 32 were cut off by the British cavalry, near Derby, deprived of their blankets, and put in prison at Philadelphia, where more than half died of cold, hunger, and disease. In April, '78, he, with others, were put on board a prison ship for New York, where he was exchanged in July, and soon after joined his regiment, and was in the battle in Rhode Island, and in that signal retreat, under Gen. Sullivan.

The following paper, written by the late William Willder Wheildon, of Concord, was read before the Bostonian Society, on April 14, 1885, and, five days later, it appeared in "The Sunday Herald" (Boston), April 19. It was afterward reprinted in pamphlet form, and still later, with the writer's assent, in the Groton Historical Series.

New Chapter in the History of the Concord Fight

It is not very remarkable, perhaps, that the centennial period since the beginning of the Revolutionary War should be the occasion of bringing to light some new matter in relation to its early incidents, in regard to which more or less secrecy was preserved and names withheld at the time. It seems, from evidence which has lately come to the knowledge of the writer, by a casually dropped remark concerning the Concord fight, that the alarm of the movement of General Gage to seize the cannon, stores, and ammunition in Concord, was more widely known in Middlesex County than heretofore supposed. It appears, from the testimony of Mr. Artemas Wright, of Ayer, who is a grandson of Mr. Nathan Corey, of Groton, that there were several members of the Groton company of minute-men at Concord, on the morning of the 19th of April, who were in the fight at the North Bridge, and joined in the pursuit of the British troops in the retreat to Lexington.

Mr. Wright's Story

Mr. Wright says: his grandfather repeatedly told him the story, and often talked of the scenes of that day. A part of his narration was, that on the day before the Concord fight,

286 Groton during the Revolution

April 18th, while he was ploughing in his field, some distance from the middle of the town, he received notice of a meeting of the minute-men, which, of course, demanded immediate attention. It was in the afternoon, toward evening, when he received the notification. He at once unhitched his plough, drove his oxen home, took down his gun and belt, told his wife Molly, as he called her, that he was going away, and could not tell when he should come back, and that she must take care of the oxen. He then hastened to the middle of the town and joined his comrades who had assembled there.

The circumstance which had induced them to call the meeting was the arrival of some brass cannon from Concord. Of course the presence of these immediately gave rise to discussion and speculation as to the cause and the reason of their being sent to Groton from Concord. Various suggestions were made, the most prominent of which was a proposition that the company should proceed at once to Concord; but this, when put to vote, was determined in the negative, most of the members preferring to wait for further intelligence.

This conclusion, it seems, was not entirely satisfactory to all the members of the company, and some of them determined to go at once; so that, as the story is related to the writer, nine of them, with young Corey among the number, started for Concord the same evening. They travelled all night, carrying lighted pine torches a part of the way, and reached Concord at an early hour in the morning, entering one side of the town some hours before the British troops entered upon the other. Mr. Corey said they all went and got some breakfast at the house of Colonel Barrett, which was afterwards visited by the British troops in search of the cannon, ammunition and stores, most of which had been fortunately removed, the day before, to places of safety. After getting something to eat they proceeded toward the centre of the town, and soon joined the men of Concord, and finally were in the ranks of the minute-men, at or near the North Bridge, where the fight with the British troops occurred.

They continued with the minute-men, and followed the retreating troops to Lexington, or beyond.

This is the story related by Mr. Wright, as often repeated to him by his grandfather Corey; and this, according to the accepted history of the time, and as at present understood, appeared to the writer, on the instant, as wholly improbable. It must still remain so unless it can be explained and accounted for in the transactions and events of the period.

The objection to be met and answered is, how could the people of Groton, thirty miles from Boston, at about the time the British troops were moving toward their boats, on the evening of the 18th, know anything of General Gage's purpose or design to visit Concord? Of course they knew nothing, excepting such information as the presence of the brass cannon, which had arrived among them, indicated. Probably the men who conveyed the cannon from Concord could not explain the matter, and yet it may possibly be true that they had learned before they left Concord, or suspected, the reason why they were sent; and, if so, would be sure to communicate it to the people of Groton. This, when we come to think of it, is not very improbable, although no reason is given in the votes of the Committee for their action. However this may be, the improbable story of Mr. Wright may possibly be explained and accounted for by the action of the Committee of Safety in the matter, by showing that the cannon were sent to Groton, and why they came to be sent there at that particular time.

Explanation of the Story

Almost every person familiar with the history of this period would, on the instant, reject the story as a fiction, and nothing but entire confidence in the truthfulness of the party referred to, and the little probability there is of his being able to invent such a relation, induced the writer to give it a moment's consideration. Turning the history of the period over in our mind, the points of which were very familiar, we thought we could see a possible explanation of the matter, as a consequence of the cautionary action of Warren, and the important services rendered at this time by Paul Revere.

It is well known to most readers and students, who are familiar with the history of this period, that Dr. Warren, so far as is known by his own inclination, remained in Boston while the Provincial Congress was in session at Concord, expressly to observe the action and movements of General Gage in this trying period. In consequence of some of these movements, especially that of launching the transport boats preparatory for use, and taking the Grenadiers and Light Infantry off duty, Warren determined to send notice of them, and of the preparations being made, as he believed, to capture the stores at Concord, to Hancock and Adams, then at Lexington.

This message was sent by Paul Revere, on Sunday, the 16th of April, 1775, to the effect that the British were preparing for an excursion into the country, and it was at once understood that the stores and ammunition collected at Concord were the object. Revere delivered his message promptly at Lexington, and returned in the afternoon, when, before going across the river from Charlestown, he made his arrangements about the signal-lanterns with Colonel Conant, — a matter which, no doubt, he had determined and arranged in his own mind during his solitary ride from Lexington.

Action of the Committee of Safety

The Provincial Congress, which had been in session at Concord, adjourned on Saturday, the 15th of April, but the Committees of Safety and Supplies, who had control of the military, and other public matters pertaining thereto, did not adjourn finally on that day. They remained at Concord, and held an important meeting on Monday morning, the 17th, and, no doubt, commenced their proceedings without waiting for the arrival of Hancock from Lexington, where he had gone with Sam Adams each night during the session of Congress.

The first votes which the Committees passed, according to the records of their meetings, were as follows : —

Voted, that two four-pounders, now at Concord, be mounted by the Committee of Supplies, and that Colonel Barrett be desired to raise an Artillery Company, to join the Army when raised, etc. ; and, also, that an instructor for the use of the cannon be appointed, to be put directly in pay.

Voted, unanimously, that £6, lawful money, be a Captain's pay in an artillery Company ; that the 1st and 2d lieutenants have £4 5s. ; that the Sergeants have 42s. per month, etc.

Voted, that when these Committees adjourn, it be to Mr. Wetherby's, at the Black Horse, Menotomy, on Wednesday, at 10 o'clock.

After these votes were passed, it is supposed and believed, John Hancock arrived from Lexington and joined the Committee in their meeting. Of course, he immediately communicated to them the important intelligence which he had received from Dr. Warren the day before, so that, without any reconsideration of the votes just passed, any adjournment or recess, the record shows that they continued the meeting and passed the following votes : —

Voted, that the four six-pounders be transported to Groton, and put under the care of Colonel Prescott.

Voted, that two seven-inch brass mortars be transported to Acton.

Voted, that the two Committees adjourn to Mr. Wetherby's, at Menotomy, [at] ten o'clock. [Not Wednesday, as first voted.]

The next day (Tuesday) a meeting was held, and it was voted that "the two brass two-pounders, and two brass three-pounders, be under the care of the Boston Company of Artillery, and of Capt. Robinson's (Company)."

What finally was the disposition of these cannon we have no means of knowing ; but, when the approach of the British troops became known, Dr. Ripley, in his "History of the Fight at Concord," says : —

290 Groton during the Revolution

A considerable number of them (Concord minute-men) were ordered to assist the citizens who were actively engaged in removing and secreting cannon, military stores, and provisions. The cannon were nearly all conveyed to a distance, some to adjacent towns, and some were buried in the ground, and some under heaps of manure.

Numerous other votes were passed for the removal and secretion of ammunition, provision, etc., and the Committee adjourned to the next day.

On Wednesday (19th) the Committee continued its session, at Menotomy (West Cambridge, now Arlington), and passed additional votes on the same subject.

Thus were the votes first passed, before the arrival of John Hancock, rescinded; and, of course, the cannon were not mounted, no Artillery Company was formed, nor teacher employed for their instruction.

All this was the result of the information from Dr. Warren, brought to Lexington by Paul Revere; to Concord by John Hancock, and, we may almost say, carried to Groton by the cannon! It is believed that no other explanation can be given of the discrepancies in these votes, so entirely different and adverse to each other, than that which has been suggested, namely, the arrival of Mr. Hancock after the passage of the first named votes, and the intelligence brought by him of General Gage's movements at Boston.

Sending the Cannon to Groton

In accordance with the final votes of the Committee, the next morning (Tuesday, 18th) the cannon were promptly on their way to Groton, and arrived there late in the afternoon, while at Boston, the British troops were getting ready to embark in their boats for the opposite side of the river, on their way to Concord.

In view of what has been said, it may now be pretty confidently asked, What information did the appearance of these cannon at Groton communicate to the people, and especially the minute-men of that town? It will be recollected that only a short time before this (26th of February), General Gage had sent Colonel Leslie to Salem to seize some pieces of cannon there, which he failed to secure, and this was probably known to the people of Groton at this time. There cannot be a doubt, therefore, putting these two things together, as to the story the presence of these cannon told, even if the men who carried them had been speechless.

Action of the Groton Men

The proceedings and action which followed, on the part of the Groton minute-men, were both natural and reasonable, and fully authorized the action of the volunteers, even supposing they were moved by curiosity alone, — a mere desire to see British soldiers. The minute-men, as we have stated, were promptly called together, and some of them determined to go to Concord that night ; and, while Colonel Smith was moving his troops over the Cambridge marshes and swamps, these patriots were on their way to meet them at Concord bridge, without knowing who they were to meet or what was in store for them. What followed has been stated. The Groton minute-men arrived, and were among their brethren of Concord, Acton, Carlisle, Lincoln, and Bedford, in following and harassing the retreating troops, and it would seem, from the relation which we have given, that the improbability of Mr. Wright's story has been removed ; the cannon certainly went to Groton, and almost as certainly the Groton minute-men came to Concord. The minute-men of the other towns named were notified of the coming of the British troops by special messengers. The cannon sent to Acton, no doubt, upon their arrival there on Tuesday (18th), told the same story as did the cannon at Groton ; but, being so near to Concord, the citizens very naturally concluded that, if they were wanted, word would be sent to them at the earliest moment, as was the case ; but the Groton men, though few in number, were the first to arrive.

292 Groton during the Revolution

Mr. Corey, who used to tell his story in relation to the Concord fight to his grandchildren in his talk about the war, continued in the service of his country, and prior to his death a pension was granted to him (or afterwards to his widow); but nothing was ever received by either of them.

Confirmatory Evidence

Since the first mention of this subject by the writer, Dr. Samuel A. Green, a native of Groton, has published a handsome volume, entitled "Epitaphs from the Old Burying Ground in Groton, Mass." One of the inscriptions, found upon the monument to the memory of Captain Abram Child, contains the following sentence: "He was a Lieutenant among the minute-men, and AIDED IN THE CONCORD FIGHT and the battle of Bunker Hill, 1775." The remainder of the inscription shows that Captain Child went through the war with Washington, and was the oldest Captain in the service at the capture of Stony Point, in 1779. He was just the man for a night expedition to Concord.

Mr. George William Curtis, in speaking of this incident in the history of the Concord fight, in a letter to the writer, says: "Your new chapter throws light upon the tradition of the horseman at Acton rousing the house with the news after midnight on the 18th. The whole legend is very interesting." And, we may add, seems to be confirmed most unexpectedly from various quarters. The Groton men, of course, came down through Acton, probably after midnight, and no doubt, with or without their burning torches, produced some excitement on the road.

Importance of the Service of Warren and Revere

One result of this story is particularly worthy of notice, since it shows very clearly what has scarcely ever been considered, or, in fact, alluded to, and that is the importance of the service rendered by Paul Revere in his journey to Lexington, on Sunday prior to the much more celebrated midnight ride which followed it. The story of this ride, quiet and peaceful as it was, has never been immortalized in the lines of the poet; yet it shows very clearly that the preservation of the cannon — nearly all that the Colony possessed at that time, — and probably the largest portion of the ammunition and stores at Concord, were saved, as we have seen, by the cautionary measures of Dr. Warren, and the essential service of Paul Revere, on the Sunday previous to the fight at Concord bridge.

Revere himself makes but very slight mention of this Sunday ride. He simply says: —

The Sunday before, by desire of Dr. Warren, I had been to Lexington, to Messrs. Hancock and Adams, who were at the Rev. Mr. Clark's. I returned at night through Charlestown; there I agreed with a Colonel Conant, and other gentlemen, that if the British went out by water, we would show two lanterns in the North Church Steeple, and if by land, one, as a signal; for we were apprehensive it would be difficult to cross the Charles River, or get over Boston Neck.

(Revere's letter to Dr. Belknap.)

We see now more clearly than ever before the importance of Paul Revere's first ride to Lexington.

Note

Since this paper was read before the Bostonian Society, Mr. Wright has informed the writer that his grandfather, after he had told him the story about the Concord fight, gave to him an old powder-horn which he had used during the war. This powder-horn, he said, he took from a British soldier who had been shot on the retreat to Lexington, and whose body was lying by the roadside in J Incoln. Some of the other men, he said, took off his boots and some of his clothes. The powder-horn, Mr. Wright says, was quite a nice piece of work, and held just one pound of powder. It had a peculiar stopper (probably a spring snapper, like some now known), and at the larger end, on the under side (when hung over the shoulder), was engraved the English coat of arms, and on the upper side, what Mr. Wright says, they call the British Ensign. The bottom of the horn was made of brass, saucer shaped, with a hole half an inch in diameter, in the centre, serving as a tunnel, to pour in the powder, with a wooden stopper. The horn had been used by Mr. Wright and his brother, in their hunting excursions, for many years, and they agree perfectly in the description of it. It was finally lost, by the brother who owned it, in the burning of his house some years ago.

294 Groton during the Revolution

After having written the above, the writer was informed by Mr. Winsor, librarian of Harvard College, that there was a powder-horn somewhat answering the above description in possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society. The next day (June 11, 1885) the writer visited the rooms of the Society, in Boston, and was shown by Dr. Green, the librarian, several old powder-horns of a similar character, all of them quite elaborately engraved and similar in many respects apparently to that described by Mr. Wright, with the exception that these all appeared to be American powder-horns, as one of them seemed to say, "To be used in the cause of liberty." Mr. Wright's story of this old powder-horn which he had, and the way his grandfather came into possession of it, and its distinct resemblance to those in use at the time, give additional weight and interest to the original story that the Groton men were in the Concord fight on the 19th of April, 1775. The dead soldier was probably one of those buried in the Lincoln graveyard.

Appendix

STRICTLY speaking, the following articles do not belong in this volume, as they are in no way connected with the Revolutionary War. But they bear so closely on the military history of the town, as a matter of convenience it has been thought best to print them here in an Appendix.

Two Groton Soldiers in the Expedition against Carthagena

War between Great Britain and Spain was declared on October 23, 1739; and early in the year 1740 the English government sent out an expedition against the Spanish possessions on this continent. The English provinces in America were called upon to furnish their share both of men and means toward the undertaking; and Massachusetts sent five hundred soldiers who took part in the operations against Carthagena, the principal town on the Spanish main, in the province of New Granada. Of this number only fifty men lived to return, the others for the most part dying of pestilential disease. Among the Massachusetts Archives (XCI. 333) at the State House is an imperfect Muster Roll of Captain John Prescott's Company, which gives the names of two soldiers, natives of Groton, and presumably residents of the town, who served in that unfortunate expedition. They were Josiah Blanchard, aged 40, a blacksmith by trade, who enlisted on May 10, 1740; and Joshua Parker, aged 39, "Gentelman," who enlisted on July 1. Probably neither lived to return, as there is no later reference to them in any public record. Blanchard was an only son of James and Anna Blanchard, and was born on June 24, 1698. For eight years his father was town clerk of Groton. I am unable to identify Parker, who belonged to a family very numerous in the town.

Groton Artillery Company

Last Tuesday se'nnight [September 30] the regiment commanded by Col. Henry Woods, and the company of artillery commanded by Capt. [Amos] Farnsworth, met at Groton, for the purpose of discipline. — Their conduct through the whole day was such, as merited the applause of a numerous body of spectators, and did honor to all those immediately concerned, and clearly demonstrated, they had in view the importance of a well disciplined militia, to a rising nation.

Amos Farnsworth, Captain,
Abijah Prescott, Captain Lieutenant,
Samuel Rockwood, first lieutenant,
Winslow Parker, senior second lieutenant,
Elnathan Sartell, junior second lieutenant.

The South Military Company

The following copies of original papers were given me nearly twenty years ago, by the late Dr. John S. H. Fogg, of South Boston, in whose possession they were at that time. They relate to the South Company of Groton, then commanded by Captain Timothy Bigelow, who afterward became Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, as also did Luther Lawrence, to whom one of the warrants is addressed. Tyler Bigelow, one of the private soldiers, was a cousin and subsequently a brother-in-law of Captain Timothy, and the father of the late Honorable George Tyler Bigelow, formerly Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. Loammi Baldwin, Jr., another private, was afterward a distinguished civil engineer, who built the Government dry docks at Charlestown and at Norfolk, Virginia. For many years there were three military companies in the town, known respectively as the North Company, the South Company, and the Groton Artillery; and occasionally they would parade together through the village streets, and drill as a battalion.

A Naval Hero

The following extract is taken from "The History of our Navy from its Origin to the Present Day 1775-1897" (New York, 1897), by John R. Spears. An account is there given of the last battle fought by the United States frigate "Essex" against two British vessels in the harbor of Valparaiso, on March 28, 1814. Owing to more men and heavier guns on the part of the enemy, Captain David Porter, the American commander, was obliged to give the order to strike the colors.

At that, Benjamin Hazen, a Groton seaman (who, though painfully wounded, had remained at his post, and at the last had joined in the request to haul down the flag to save the wounded), bade adieu in hearty fashion to those around him, said he had determined never to survive the surrender of the Essex, and jumped overboard. He was drowned (III. 43, 44).

For several generations the name of Benjamin Hazen has been a familiar one in Groton. Heroes do not spring up, here or elsewhere, in such numbers that the town can afford to forget such a son, who long ago passed into obscurity. Hazen's name, numbered 180, is given in a list printed in the "Journal of a Cruise made to the Pacific Ocean" (Philadelphia, 1815), by Captain David Porter. It is found on page 9 of the first volume, where he is rated as a "seaman;" and on page 161 of the second volume it appears again in the list of those killed in action.

Benjamin Hazen was the third son and fourth child of Benjamin and Lydia (Woods) Hazen, and was born at Groton, on June 13, 1776. A year ago, in talking with Luther Hazen, a native of the town and a nephew of the seaman, I found that he was familiar with the circumstances connected with his uncle's tragic death. He told me that, according to family tradition, the old sailor weighted his pockets with heavy shot before he jumped overboard.

Groton Military Matters

From the earliest period of our Colonial history training-days were appointed by the General Court for the drilling of soldiers; and at intervals the companies used to come together as a regiment and practise military evolutions. From this custom arose the modern militia muster.

During a long time, and particularly in the early part of the present century, many such musters were held at Groton. A training-field often used for the purpose was the plain, situated near Capell's Mills, a mile and a half northwest of the village. Sometimes they were held on the easterly side of the Great Road, and at other times on the westerly side. During my boyhood musters took place, twice certainly, on the eastern slope of the hill on the south side of the Broad Meadow Road near Farmers' Row; and also, once certainly, in the field lying southeast of Lawrence Academy, where High Street now runs, though it occurred before that street was laid out. Musters have been held on land back of the house formerly occupied by Charles Jacobs, and in a field near the dwelling where Benjamin Moors used to live, close by James's Brook in the south part of the town.

A well-known military company of the State militia, and one of the oldest in the State, was the Groton Artillery, organized on October 19, 1778, with William Swan as its first captain. (See page 296 for an early item concerning this company.) In later times, known as Co. B, Sixth Massachusetts Militia Regiment of Infantry, it took part in the War of the Rebellion. It went into the public service on the memorable occasion when Governor John A. Andrew called for three-months men to go to Washington, and it was one of the companies forming the Sixth Massachusetts Militia Regiment which passed through Baltimore on April 19, 1861. After an eventful experience at the outset, the regiment returned to Boston on August 1. In the autumn of that year the Twenty-sixth was recruited in Lowell, the old Sixth furnishing the nucleus; and the companies left Boston for Ship Island, Mississippi Sound, on November 21. The officers in the two regiments were for the most part the same; and again the Groton Artillery company shared the lot and fortune of the new organization. It formed Co. B, and served with distinction during three years. In the summer of 1862, after a call for nine-months men, the Sixth Regiment was ordered into camp at Lowell, and recruited to its full strength. On September 1, when it left for Washington, a company went with it which was an offshoot of the Groton Artillery. And still later the same regiment was mustered into service on July 20, 1864, for one hundred days, and left at once for Washington, again accompanied by the representatives of the old Artillery company.

Upon the re-organization of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, under Chapter 204, Acts of 1876, by an order dated July 14, 1876, this historic body became Co. F, Tenth Regiment. For one reason or another its former life and prosperity now seemed to desert it; and by an order from the Adjutant-General's office, under date of August 15, 1876, the company, with several others at the same time, was disbanded.

Near the beginning of the present century the Governor of the Commonwealth visited Groton, and was received with military honors by this same company. The fact is given in the "Columbian Centinel," July 10, 1802, as follows:—

His Excellency Governor STRONG, and Lady, are on a tour to the western part, of the State of New-Hampshire.

We hear from Groton, that on Thursday last [July 8], upon the departure of Governor STRONG from that place, where he had tarried the preceding night, the artillery company in that town, commanded by Capt. [James] LEWIS fired a salute of sixteen guns in honor of the Commander in Chief.

By a coincidence, just one hundred years before this time, Joseph Dudley, Governor of the Province, visited Groton, and was welcomed with a military reception. In the autumn of 1702, Chief-Justice Samuel Sewall accompanied Governor Dudley through Middlesex County on a tour of inspection; and in his Diary, under date of October 28, he writes: —

Went to Groton, saw Capt. [Jonas] Prescott and his company in Arms. (Gov<sup>r</sup> had sent to them from Dunstable that [he] would visit them.) Lancaster is about 12 Miles Southward from Groton. Concord is 16 Miles  $\frac{3}{4}$  and Ten-Rod from Groton.

(Massachusetts Historical Collections, fifth series, VI. 67.)

Captain Prescott was a blacksmith by trade, and the ancestor of a long line of distinguished families. He was the grandfather of Colonel William Prescott, the commander of the American forces at Bunker Hill, who was himself the father of William Prescott, the lawyer and jurist, and the grandfather of William Hickling Prescott, the historian.

Camp Stevens at Groton

During the War of the Rebellion, in the autumn of 1862, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts established a military camp at Groton, on the triangular piece of land situated in the southwesterly part of the town, and bounded by the Peterborough and Shirley Railroad, the Nashua River and the road to what was formerly known as Shirley Village, but now as Shirley. It contained eighteen or twenty acres, more or less, and at that time belonged to Joseph Cutts; the entrance was near the angle made by the railroad and the highway. The Fifty-third Regiment of Infantry, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, while its ranks were recruiting, was encamped on this ground. The regiment was raised from Groton, and Clinton, Leominster, Fitchburg, and other towns in the neighborhood belonging to Worcester County, and was mustered into the public service for nine months.

Special Order, No. 916, issued by the Adjutant-General of the Commonwealth, September 19, 1862, contains the following:—

A camp of rendezvous is established at Groton Junction, Middlesex Co., where barracks are being built, which is designated Camp Stevens. Capt. W. C. Sawyer, 23d Regt. Mass. Vols., is appointed Commandant. Due notice will be given when the barracks are ready for use.

Special Order, No. 955, under the date of September 23, has the following:—

Lindsey Tilden [Charles Linzee Tilden], 20th Regt. Mass. Vols., is detailed for Post Adjutant at Camp Stevens, Groton.

The camp was so named in memory of General Isaac Ingalls Stevens, a native of Andover and a graduate of West Point, who was killed in the battle of Chantilly, Virginia, on September 6, 1862, only a fortnight before the camp was established.

The Commandant was Wesley Caleb Sawyer, born in the adjoining town of Harvard, on August 26, 1839, who graduated at Harvard College in the Class of 1861. Soon after leaving Cambridge, he was commissioned, on October 8, 1861, as a Captain in the Twenty-third Massachusetts Volunteers, and he left the State with that regiment. He was attached to the Burnside expedition, that went to North Carolina; in the Battle of Newbern, March 14, 1862, he was severely wounded, which resulted in the amputation of his left thigh, and necessarily he was prevented from further participation in an active campaign.

The regiment left Camp Stevens, on Saturday, November 29, for New York, where it remained until January 17, 1863, at which time it embarked for New Orleans. Subsequently to the departure of the troops from Groton, the following order was issued:—

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
HEAD QUARTERS, BOSTON, Dec. 20, 1862.

Special Order, No. 1311.

The troops which were enlisted and mustered into service at Camp Stevens, Groton Junction, having left the Commonwealth for the seat of war, Capt. Wesley C. Sawyer, Commandant of the Camp, is relieved from further service, and I am directed by His Excellency the Commander in Chief, to thank Capt. Sawyer for the acceptable manner in which he has performed the duties of his post.

By order of the Commander in Chief,

WILLIAM SCHOULER,
Adjt. General.

Since the war Captain Sawyer has studied at Göttingen, Germany, where he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. He has since held the professorship of Intellectual Philosophy and Rhetoric in Lawrence University, Appleton, Wisconsin, and as a professor has been connected with the Normal School at Oshkosh, Wisconsin; but for the last ten years he has been a resident of California.

The barracks and other structures used by the soldiers at Camp Stevens have long since disappeared, and not a trace of the former occupation is now to be seen. Years ago some of them were taken down, and others moved away, mostly to the village of Ayer. Hon. George James Burns, a lawyer of that town, wrote an interesting article for "The Groton Landmark," June 25, 1887, which traces the history of many of these buildings.

In the autumn of 1862, Dr. Edward Jarvis, of Dorchester, was appointed by Surgeon-General Dale to visit the various camps in the State, of which there were ten, and report on their sanitary condition. The result of his labors may be found in two communications printed in "The Boston Medical and Surgical Journal" (LXVII. 364-367 and 381-384, respectively) for December 4 and 11, 1862, wherein he makes some criticism on Camp Stevens.

According to the "Record of Massachusetts Volunteers, 1861-1865" (I. 390-392), the following soldiers died in camp at Groton: Henry A. Waters, of Shirley, Co. D, on October 25, 1862; Spencer Stockwell, of Athol, Co. E, November 20; and Daniel P. Hemenway, of Barre, Co. F, December 1.

Roll of Honor

1861-1865

Like many other places in New England, the town of Groton has erected a monument in memory of her sons who fell during the War of the Rebellion. It is in the form of a marble tablet, affixed to the southerly wall of the entry-way in the Town House, and bears the names of the men, as well as of their company and regiment, and the date and place of their death. The names of forty soldiers, arranged in four columns of ten each, are cut in the marble immediately under the legend. Unfortunately, the list was not prepared with strict historical accuracy, and, as a result, various errors, both of omission and commission, have crept into the record. Unfortunately, too, the stone-cutter has not been uniform in his use of punctuation marks; and even the names are not placed in exact alphabetical order.

The tablet measures 7 feet 9 inches in width, by 6 feet 9 inches in height, including a moulding five inches in width round the four sides. The appropriation for the cost was made by the town, on April 3, 1882, but, according to "Turner's Public Spirit" (Ayer), May 31, 1884, the stone was not placed in position until May 28 of that year. The expense of the tablet, as given on page 24 of the Annual Report of the Town for the year ending March 20, 1885, was $293.30.

The inscriptions are as follows:—

Echo of the Spanish War

A special dispatch from Fitchburg, dated February 15, 1900, and printed in "The Boston Herald" of the next day, says:—

William F. Duggan of Company F, 26th regiment, who was reported killed in the Philippines, was born in July, 1875, in Groton, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick F. Duggan of Leominster. He was an employe of the Wheelwright Paper Company, and shortly before his enlistment worked in Holyoke. He enlisted from Springfield. He leaves a father, a mother, and five brothers and sisters.
